BLOW SAFE GET $5000 IN GOLD.

A bold safe robbery of $5,500 was discovered to-day in the dental materials establishment of Crimmings, Magrath & Co., incorporated, at No. 136 Boylston street, opposite the Common, and not 100 yards from the corner of Tremont street. One safe was blown open with nitroglycerine and a second one was bored open.

The robbery was committed almost in plain view of the throngs that continually pass through Boylston street, night and day, at this point. The police declare it was the boldest and most thorough "job" that has been done in years in Boston.

It was discovered by John J. Crimmings, manager of the firm, who was astounded to see the safe in the front office, first floor above the street, a wreck when he entered the place to-day. A moment afterward he found the second safe, drummers' sample bags and show cases plundered. He immediately notified police headquarters.

Hide Clues in Break.

A hasty examination revealed a loss of about $5,000 in pure gold and platinum and $500 in cash. The safeblowers had taken their time and had done a complete job, taking nothing by which they could be identified and only stealing goods that can be readily disposed of.

Inspector Pelton, the safe expert at headquarters; Inspector Michael Shields and Patrolman Thompson, who took immediate charge of the case, found that the burglars had carefully gummed the edges of the downstairs doors of the Boylston street building, so that they could not have made a close connection when closed Saturday night. This made it possible to pry them open easily with a jimmy, without leaving any marks visible from the outside.

On the first floor above the street a hole, one-eighth of an inch in diameter, had been drilled beneath the knob of the door en-

ALDRICH TO RUSH TARIFF

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Progress on the tariff bill is not as rapid as the leaders in the Senate would like to have it. The manner in which the Republican insurgents have attacked the schedules has delayed consideration more than has the opposition of the Democrats. The Senate has now the bill under consideration for five weeks and has disposed only of one-fifth of the number of paragraphs.

The prospects of a prolonged session are so apparent that Senator Aldrich has forced the Senate into early sessions, beginning daily at 10 a. m. He hopes that warm weather will follow and shut off oratory.

The Senate Finance Committee has complied with the request of Western Senatosr and will report an amendment making a re-classification of the wire nail schedules.

When the Senate convened to-day Senator Sutherland spoke on the income tax, contending that this form of taxation should be reserved to the State except in cases of absolute necessity.

HELLO GIRL BRIDE IN SECRET WEDDING

The supervisor of the Dedham telephone exchange has resigned, and for good reason.

She's married now.

Her name was Miss Nellie McMillan. Her name is Mrs. George A. Nay.

The marriage took place last Wednesday and it was quite a secret, it seems. It did not become known till to-day.

Miss McMillan, or Mrs. Nay, to give her new title, is the daughter of Mrs. W. A. Newman of Dedham. She has been supervisor of the Dedham exchange for five years. Also she has been engaged for some time to George A. Nay.

Mr. Nay is the son of J. Henry Nay, the Boston horseman, who has a stock farm at No. 2549 Centre street, West Roxbury. It was expected that the couple would be married some time this Summer, but they surprised families and friends by slipping away last Wednesday evening to the home of the Rev. Perley B. Davis of Park street, West Roxbury, and being married.

About this time Mrs. Nay sent in her resignation as supervisor of the telephone exchange. The resignation is to take place next Saturday. She will supervise a home thereafter instead of a telephone exchange.

CHANCE OUT OF GAME FOR THREE WEEKS

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—It was said to-day that Frank Chance, manager and first baseman of the Chicago Nationals, who is at St. Joseph's Hospital here with a badly wrenched shoulder, will be out of the game for the next three weeks. While reaching for a ball in the preliminary practice Saturday afternoon Chance sprained the ligaments in his left shoulder.

IF YOU SEE THIS MAN, CALL POLICE

HUNT BARBER CHASE, SUITOR OF SLAIN GIRL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 17.—The police sent out notices broadcast to-day for the detention of Clarence G. Chase, the Auburn barber, in connection with the murder of Laura E. Regester.

The notices, accompanied by detailed description of Chase, have been sent to Boston, throughout New England and to New York. They read as follows:

DETAIN THIS MAN.

Clarence G. Chase; occupation, barber; age, 35 years; height, 5 feet, 5 inches; weight, 160 pounds; complexion, light; eyes gray, unusually bright and active; hair, bushy and sandy; sometimes wears glasses; usually smooth-shaven. When last seen was dressed in black clothes and wore black derby hat.

Wanted in connection with the investigation of the murder of Laura E. Regester at Providence, R. I.

Slain Girl's Admirer.

The Providence police make no charges. But they wish to talk with Chase. Under the law a person may be detained and held for twenty-four hours in such circumstances.

Chase was one of the recognized admirers of the murdered girl. He had called on her before her engagement to Charles Douglass. Then his visits to her home ceased. But it is said by several people that Chase had met Miss Regester outside of her home on several occasions since her betrothal to Douglass.

Some have gone so far as to declare that Chase and Miss Regester were quite friendly. There is no argument over the statement that Chase had deep admiration for her.

This puts Chase in the position of being the only one of Miss Regester's admirers who has not been interviewed by the police. Chase knew the girl well. Many who knew her have been questioned by the police, even coming forward with information on their own account.

Not Seen for Two Days.

Chase has not been questioned because the police cannot find him. He has not volunteered to come forward. It is incredible that he is unaware of the murder. It seems to the police only natural to suppose that a man who knew the girl so well and who esteemed her so highly would try to aid the police in avenging her murder the moment he heard about it.

In addition to Chase's failure to come forward there is the coincidence of his disappearance from his accustomed places about the time of the murder. He has not been seen at his barber shop in Auburn since Saturday, May 7, two days before the murder. The police have searched Auburn, Cranston and Providence for him in vain.

No Motive Found.

Both Ernest Allen, the divorced husband, and Charles Douglass, the man who was to wed Miss Regester, have talked with the

JURY FIXING ENDS; GRAFTERS IN PANIC

McCULLOUGH AND CASSIDY CONVICTED

Guilty of larceny and of conspiracy to defraud the city was the verdict rendered to-day in Judge Schofield's court against Leo F. McCullough, a member of the Boston Common Council, and James T. Cassidy, a Boston lawyer.

The maximum penalty for the larceny of more than $100 is five years in State prison and for conspiracy three years in the House of Correction. The two men were charged with the larceny of $200 in connection with a book deal.

Bail in each case was raised from $500 to $1,500, which Cassidy furnished at once. McCullough waited in the detention room while his lawyer, John P. Feeney, sought bail for him. Notice of a new trial in both cases was given.

Seldom has a trial of such an ostensibly petty character aroused such extraordinary interest in Boston. The case was tried once before and it resulted in a disagreement. It was one of the so-called graft cases that came as a legacy to the new district attorney, Mr. Hill, when he was appointed to succeed the late John B. Moran.

Rumor had been so persistent for many months that any jury that was selected in Suffolk County could be "fixed" that this case developed in the minds of the public, at least, into a trial of that rumor rather than a testing of the merits of the indictments charged.

As a result, when the court convened to-day, the courtroom was jammed and the corridors were packed with politicians, municipal officials and business men who were anxious to hear the result.

Lawyers talked openly of "jury fixing," and declared it was impossible to get a verdict of guilty in any "graft case" in this city. Business men became alarmed and in various organizations the matter was talked over quietly with a view to taking some sort of action if it were deemed expedient. Remarks that have recently fallen from the lips of several judges on the bench indicated the feeling that seemed to permeate Boston, that it was impossible to get a grafter convicted, had reached them.

District Attorney Hill went so far in his speech to the jury last Saturday as to say that the great jury system was actually on trial. He told the jurors plainly that if improper influences were brought to bear upon them it would be a calamity to every man and woman of the Commonwealth.

The District Attorney went as far as he could to prevent any tampering with the jury. He had the twelve men shadowed by detectives in civilian's clothes. Every juror was watched from the time he was chosen until the verdict was reached.

The District Attorney also had the principals in the case followed. It is safe to say that he was prepared to prosecute to the limit anyone discovered trying to reach a juror.

And it may be mentioned here that the same system of espionage to guard against jury fixing will be

MAUD HOWE ELLIOTT ARRIVES ON ROMANIC

Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott arrived in Boston to-day on the White Star liner Romanic to attend the celebration of the ninetieth birthday of her mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, which occurs on May 27, and had as ward for the voyage little Palma Cogliando, whose parents, brothers and sisters perished in the Messina earthquake. The only living relative of the child is an uncle in California, who headed the Red Cross relief work in that State. The little girl was ill with measles when the ship made this port, and under orders of Dr. Paul Carson, port physician, was taken to Gallup's Island, where she will stay until well. Then the Red Cross Society of Boston will send her to her uncle.

Other passengers were a Baptist missionary party from Telugu, South India, consisting of Professor L. E. Martin, who is going home to Kalamazoo; Mrs. J. M. Baker of Syracuse, two children and a native nurse, and Mrs. John Dussman of Philadelphia. Other passengers were Dr. Thomas Dwight of the Harvard Medical School and his daughter, Miss Mary Dwight. Former Mayor B. B. Johnson of Waltham and his wife were also aboard the Romanic.

JIM CORBETT SAYS O'BRIEN WILL GO SOME

Mr. James J. Corbett said to-day that Mr. "Jack" O'Brien of Philadelphia would have no trouble in "holding his own" against Mr. "Jack" Johnson of Galveston, Texas, the colored heavyweight champion, in their match in Philadelphia Wednesday night.

Furthermore—

Mr. Corbett averred that when Mr. "Jim" Jeffries of Ohio and Mr. Johnson came together for the championship later, there was no question that Mr. Jeffries would lick Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Corbett delivered himself of these opinions in his room in the Hotel Brewster to-day, preliminary to going to the Orpheum Theatre for his engagement there.

He made these remarks while he was dressing. While he was going out of his pajamas and into his underclothes and shoes and trousers he explained how Mr. O'Brien of Philadelphia would have no trouble with B'rer Johnson.

While putting on shirt, scarf and pin, shoes and the finishing touches Mr. Corbett boomed the stock of Mr. Jeffries regarding the eventual Jeffries-Johnson fight.

Interview in the Tub.

Mr. Corbett came to Boston to-day via the midnight train from New York. He ensconsed himself in the Hotel Brewster and said:

"I don't wish to be called until 11:30 o'clock."

He wasn't called till that time despite numerous inquiries. It must be great to "stall" callers with such ease. The clerk said Mr. Corbett was not to be disturbed till 11:30 o'clock. When 11.30 o'clock came the bell-boy said:

"Yes, but Mr. Corbett said he wasn't to be disturbed."

The elevator boy said: "Are you sure that Mr. Corbett will see anyone yet?"

"Jim had 'em hypnotized to obey orders. Maybe they feared the Corbett slam.

But "Gentleman Jim," as he has been called, was as mild as milk when a reporter butted in at the appointed time. He, the ex-champion, was chastely attired in pajamas, which he shed preparatory to bath and dressing. His interview ran somewhat as follows:

Splash from the tub—"I think O'Brien will have no trouble in staying six rounds with Johnson."

Rub, rub, rub—"I think that, if O'Brien doesn't get too gay—rub, rub—he will more than hold his own. I wouldn't—rub, rub—be a bit surprised of he should."

Doesn't Expect Knockout.

Business of pulling on underclothes—"Most everyone I meet thinks that this party, Johnson, is going to tear right in and knock O'Brien's head off right away."

Business of one stocking—"I don't think——"

Business of starboard stocking—"That Johnson is capable of doing that."

Business of trousers—"Knock-out? I don't look for any knockout either way. It's just here. I think O'Brien is a cleverer man than Johnson. He is not so big and strong as Johnson. But O'Brien is the cleverest man in the ring to-day, the cleverest boxer, I mean. I think that he will prove it next Wednesday night, although he will be fighting a man about forty pounds heavier than he is. But, I don't look for a knockout.

"I think"—Corbett was adjusting his tie—"I think that Johnson is an accident"—here a pearl stickpin was suitably inserted—"I think he always will be an accident. I have a very poor opinion of Johnson's fighting abilities.

"Why, if he licks O'Brien in a punch it wouldn't change my opinion, he's so much bigger than O'Brien."

"Jeff Will Lick Johnson."

By this time Mr. Corbett was about ready to go out. It must be said, in justification to him, that he wasn't unduly fussy about dressing. He just put on his clothes, as it were. Hat in hand, he next gave his "dope" on the Jeffries proposition.

"Jeffries lick Johnson? No question about it," he said.

"I saw Jeffries in New York last week. He was in good condition. I asked him to dine. It was after the matinee. He said he didn't eat at that time of day. He wasn't drinking. He was some twenty-eight pounds less in weight. He looked well.

"No, he may not be down to his lightest weight when he meets Johnson, but he will be all right, and he will lick that fellow Johnson."

Mr. Corbett started out. He hadn't mentioned the word "theatre," even though he is on the stage and was talking with a reporter.

It might be stated that Mr. James J. Corbett heads the bill at the Orpheum Theatre this week in his sketch, "A Thief in the Night," in which he appears with his own company.

BRANDENBERG IS SENT TO TOMBS

NEW YORK, May 17.—Defying his accusers, Broughton Brandenberg, the magazine writer accused of forging an article purporting to have been written by Grover Cleveland, was to-day sent to the Tombs to await trial, after a conference with his wife. No attempt will be made to get bail at the present time.

DOVES AND CARDINALS PLAY: WEATHER SMILES FOR RED SOX

The weather man wasn't kind to the Doves and Cardinals in their game at the Columbus avenue grounds this afternoon but they got together just the same. It was raw and damp for a baseball game. The grounds, however, were in fairly good condition in spite of the wetness of preceding hours.

In Detroit the Red Sox and Tigers had clear weather for the second engagement, and a good crowd turned out to see if the Bostonians could repeat on the Champions.

HAINS GETS 8 TO 16 YEARS IN PRISON

FLUSHING, L. I., May 17.—"The killing of William E. Annis was not justified, and I hereby sentence you to serve an indeterminate sentence of not more than sixteen years and not less than eight at hard labor, in Sing Sing prison."

Justice Garretson, in the Supreme Court today, brought to a climax with these words the series of misfortunes that have come upon the Hains family since Captain Peter C. Hains returned from his post in the Philippines to hear of his wife's wrongdoing and then to seek out William E. Annis at the Bay Side Yacht Club on August 15 last and slay him.

After the imposition of the sentence Lawyer John F. McIntyre obtained a stay of execution of sentence for twenty-four hours to swear a certificate of reasonable doubt before a county justice.

"Are You Married?"

"What is your name?" asked the clerk of the court of the captain after sentence had been passed. "Hains," replied the captain in a voice so low that the clerk could not hear it.

"Are you married?" asked the clerk.

The Captain did not answer.

"He is married," answered John F. McIntyre for him.

"What residence have you?" asked the clerk.

"None," whispered the Captain.

As the prisoner was turned over to the guards his father and his brother were the only members of the family present. He embraced them in turn. He gave no sign of emotion or interest. Before the passing of sentence by the court, counsel for the defence and for the people and Justice Garretson had a conference in the judge's chambers.

District Attorney Dewitt arose and in a very low voice asked the Court to show clemency to the prisoner.

Then Eugene N. L. Young of counsel for the prisoner, with tears in his eyes and with a voice husky with emotion, pleaded with the court to be lenient. Mr. McIntyre followed him, and then Captain Hains was told to stand up.

"Peter C. Hains, Jr., after a fair and impartial trial upon an indictment for murder in the first degree, in which you were defended by able and experienced counsel, you have been found guilty by the jury of manslaughter in the first degree," said the Court. "The Court is unaware of any substantial error having occurred upon trial to your prejudice. The jury have discredited your plea of legal irresponsibility, and by their verdict have shown to you the utmost consideration which the facts and the law warranted. With this verdict the Court is not disposed to disagree. The logic is that the killing of William E. Annis by you on the fifteenth day of August last was not justified and was the act of a man who was responsible therefor, and you must receive the penalty which the law prescribes, that no person may assume to be judge and executioner for a real or fancied wrong done to him by another.

"Such a doctrine is abhorrent to all right thinking men, and the practice of it is subversive of modern civilization. In this case the law of the State has been vindicated and the claim of right to mete out personal vengeance has been again condemned. Further comment is needless. The result of this trial is its own best comment."

BENNETT PARK, Detroit, May 17.—Somewhat dazed by the brilliancy displayed by the Red Sox in the opening game, the Tigers came on the field this afternoon filled with a wholesome respect for the visitors from Boston.

Jennings's men realized that they were in a tough fight for the leadership of the American League race, and that if they dropped the next two games to the "Speed Boys" they would at the same time drop into second place.

Jennings himself did what he could to spur his men on, but Lake, the Red Sox manager, was in no mood to allow Jennings to monopolize the coaching lines, and he yelled himself hoarse in his efforts to encourage his men.

Carrigan and Moriarty, who figured in the mixup at the plate which started a riot among the fans at the close of yesterday's game, had apparently forgotten their differences, for they were on cordial terms again. Both anxiously awaited word from President Johnson of the American League which will determine whether or not they will have to suffer suspension for their altercation.

The Red Sox were chock full of confidence when they took the field for practice, and they displayed plenty of ginger.

$1,000,000 CROP OF STRAWBERRIES

DOVER, Del., May 17.—Delaware's strawberry season, expected to enrich many poor farmers, was opened to-day. The fruit was the finest ever raised here and the crop is estimated at 22,000,000 quarts. At 3½ cents a quart this would bring $750,000 and if good prices prevail the crop may be worth $1,000,000.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, May 17.—Under leaden skies and overhanging clouds, the Doves and Cardinals met for the second time this season to battle for supremacy.

It was far from a good day on which to play, far from good from the player's viewpoint as well as that of the spectators and management. But the "regulars" were on hand to see the conflict. These fans were armed with umbrellas and top coats, for the weather was a mixture of spring and winter.

It appeared for some time, early in the day, that the game would have to be called off, but as the day advanced J. Pluvius let up and the sky partly cleared, and the game was started at the regular time. Owing to the drenching the field received in the early morning, play was a little slow.

The Doves were put to wreak vengeance on the invaders from St. Louis in this game, for they received the worst of the encounter on Saturday, the lowly Cardinals proving stronger opponents than expected.

NEW DESTROYER ON TRIAL CRUISE

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—The United States torpedo destroyer Lieutenant Smith, the fastest vessel ever built in the Delaware River, and capable of 28½ knots an hour, left the Cramp shipyards to-day for a three-days' trial cruise.

M'CULLOUGH AND CASSIDY CONVICTED

followed in all of the other graft cases that are to be tried.

McCullough and Cassidy were in the rear of the court room sitting together when court opened today. They were very solemn of demeanor and looked as though they anticipated an unfavorable result. Somehow this rumor had circulated through the court room. The silence was tense as Judge Schofield ascended the bench.

The foreman of the jury handed the judge a slip of paper. The judge glanced at it and handed it back to the clerk.

"Are the defendants in court?" asked the judge.

McCullough and Cassidy arose and walked to the bar. There was a crowding forward of bodies, the craning of necks. The silence became oppressive.

"The clerk will read the verdict," ordered the court.

"Guilty of larceny and conspiracy," recited the clerk.

Both of the prisoners looked straight ahead. There was little if any movement of their features. They had apparently steeled themselves for the worst. A buzz of excitement followed the verdict.

It became a confusion of noises as it reached the corridors and broke into open, frank discussion on the steps of the court house and in the nearby streets. Telephones rang and to City Hall, various law offices and business houses the news was flashed.

Judge Schofield fixed bail in each case at $1,500, and Lawyer William C. McGuire, for Cassidy, asked for an extension of time to file exceptions taken during the trial. The time usually allowed is three days. This time was extended until June 12. To a reporter of the AMERICAN McGuire said:

"I will go to the Supreme Court and ask for a new trial for Cassidy on exceptions saved. There are about twenty of them. The prominent exception is that witnesses had no right to hear one another's testimony before the Grand Jury. This question has never been settled in this State. Another exception is to the Judge's charge to the jury."

Cassidy left the courtroom at 10:03, bail having qualified for him. Bonds were furnished by Edward O'Brien and Mrs. Margaret Bogan.

Going to Supreme Court.

McCullough had not come to court prepared to furnish additional bail, and at 11 o'clock he was asked to step into the detention room. His lawyer, John T. Feeney, said that it would only be a matter of a little time and bail would be secured. He left the court house to get it.

The jury went out at 4:12 Saturday afternoon and reached a verdict at 10:30 that night. The jury was then discharged and the verdict brought into court to-day.

The case against McCullough and Cassidy grew out of charges made by the Finance Commission. While McCullough was president of the Common Council an order was passed providing $200 for the purchase of books and decorations for the president's office.

Some time after that, according to the testimony of a clerk in the City Auditor's office, McCullough entered there and introduced Cassidy, saying:

Bill for $200 in Case.

"I want to introduce you to Mr. Cassidy. He will have a bill coming due here for some reports at my office the coming month."

It was testified that McCullough accompanied Cassidy to the auditor's office on the day a bill for $200 was presented, and that Cassidy got $200 for goods supposed to have been delivered to McCullough. The Finance Commission said in this connection:

"It appears that a bill was made by Cassidy at McCullough's request which was false, and known by both to be false, but was approved by McCullough as president of the Common Council, on which the city paid $200 and received nothing in return."

Remarkable Address by Hill.

The address of District Attorney Hill to the jury was remarkable for its references to the necessity of keeping outside influences from the jury. This portion of his address is here repeated:

"So far I have argued on the evidence, but there is another side to this case of which I want to speak. If it is decided on the evidence, indeed, there can be only one result. If we were trying an ordinary case of theft, and had evidence like this, there would be a conviction in half an hour.

"The only reason for any question here is because the theft is from the city of Boston and, because the defendants rely, not on the evidence, but on political prejudice and indirect influences. There is more on trial here than the defendants. You are on trial, and the jury system in this country is on trial.

Advice to Jury.

"If you do not convict in this case it means that a Suffolk County jury cannot be trusted to deal with a case of theft from the city of Boston. This is what it means and nothing else. The whole community knows it. There is not a man or woman in this room, there is not a person familiar with the facts, who has any doubt that the defendants are guilty. They know it themselves, but what they and their friends hope is that you are not men enough to decide the case upon the law and the evidence as you decide other cases.

"They hope that you will allow yourselves to be swayed by the jeering crowd who, when this trial began, filled the courtroom and haunted the corridors of the courthouse. They hope that some one of the prejudices and influences with which this case has been surrounded will swerve you from the path of honesty and justice, and the community knows that this is so and its weaker members doubt whether you can be trusted. This doubt I do not share. I believe and am proud to believe that citizens of Suffolk County serving on the jury can be trusted to do their duty as the judge on the bench does his, and as the representatives of the Commonwealth have tried to do theirs.

"It is of very little consequence in the long run whether these defendents are convicted or not. It is of enormous consequence that the administration of justice in this country should be kept free from stain. Our whole civilization rests on the integrity of the jury. It protects equally the rich and the poor, the small and the great.

SEEK EVIDENCE AGAINST KLOUS IN COAL GRAFT

Assistant District Attorney James Curtis left to-day for New York, where he will make investigations and obtain evidence to be used in the government's trial of Morris H. Klous, agent of the W. K. Niver Coal Company, indicted for the larceny of $32,000 in October, 1907, in connection with the alleged coal graft investigated by the Finance Commission.

Klous has been out under bail of $10,000 since indictments were returned against him. Assistant District Attorney Curtis has been in Philadelphia and in other cities recently working on the Klous case, and he will have charge of the prosecution.

MANY MORE AWAIT TRIAL ON GRAFT CHARGES

The following men, charged with "grafting" on the city, are awaiting trial. Their cases will be pushed as fast as possible and the jurors will be watched, as in the retrial of the McCullough case, to prevent jury fixing:

GEORGE H. BATTIS, Alderman, indicted for larceny from city.

MAURICE H. KLOUS, coal dealer, indicted for defrauding city of $32,000.

JOSEPH T. HILLES, coal dealer, charged with defrauding the city of $5,705.43.

EDWARD O. KAINE, lawyer, indicted in connection with the Codman street land fraud.

ALBERT S. MILLER, JR., Eastern Bridge & Structural Company, of Worcester.

ELMER F. SMITH, president and treasurer of the G. W. & F. Smith Iron Company, of Boston.

CHARLES M. PENNYCUICK, salesman for the G. W. & F. Smith Iron Company, Boston.

JOHN G. WITHAM, New England Structural Company, Boston.

HENRY C. COLLINS, structural engineer for the Berlin Construction Company of Berlin, Ct.

HOWARD P. CONVERSE, of H. P. Converse & Co., 120 Milk street.

EDWIN P. BLISS, of H. P. Converse & Co., of 17 Linden avenue, Malden.

BENJAMIN K. GORHAM, formerly New England agent for the Canton Bridge Company.

EDWARD B. STEARNS, with the American Bridge Company of New York.

IRVING C. HURD, formerly connected with the L. M. Ham Company of 120 Portland street, Boston.

GEORGE C. BARTRAM of Young's Hotel, formerly connected with the Phoenix Iron Company.

HENRY M. JONES, of firm of Maquiere & Jones, Portland, Me.

Dynamiters Get Big Haul of Gold in Boston

tering the Crimmings, Magrath & Co. suite, so that it, too, was scarcely visible. Through this hole the burglars had picked the lock.

View of Street.

The first safe was not more than ten feet from the window, at a point easily seen from across Bolyston street. A half-inch hole was bored near the combination. The men had then soaked all the office clothing in the safe and bound it around the safe, so as to absorb the gases and muffle the explosion. The hole was filled, evidently with nitro-glycerine, and the door blown open in expert fashion.

From this safe between $3,000 and $4,000 worth of pure gold and about $1,000 worth of platinum was taken. The burglars ignored the dental fillings, which are less valuable and not so readily converted into cash.

The second safe was in the rear of the suite, near the bookkeepers' desk. This was bored open and $300 cash, together with about $50 worth of railroad mileage, was stolen. The burglars took the precaution to remove or destroy the bookkepers' records of the mileage, so that it cannot now be identified.

From the showcases the best gold samples were taken and the cheaper ones ignored.

Ransack Drummers' Cases.

It happens that seven drummers of the firm were in Boston Saturday, taking in their samples for their June trip, on which they were to start to-day. Their cases were well stocked. These cases were ransacked and the choicest gold materials stolen. The burglars took a sixteen-inch case, marked E. H. C., and a square sample case, marked C. M. Co., in which to carry away the plunder.

The crime was committed between Saturday night and this morning. It is impossible to say just when. Cornelius Cheney, a musician, who is the only person who slept in the building, declared to-day that he heard no suspicious noise either Saturday night or last night. He is not a sound sleeper.

The police found numerous evidences that the job had been thoroughly planned. They learned of several suspicious characters who had frequented the building last week. Miss Rose Litt, who has an emblem establishment on one of the upper floors, said that she had had several applications for jobs from men who looked as if they might be criminals. She particularly suspected one young man of seedy appearance and a stout, red-faced man.

Saw Several Suspects.

The office boys in the Crimmings, Magrath Company establishment said they had noticed several men who had no business in the place.

Inspector Pelton thought it possible that the burglars were identical with those who committed a similar crime at the Parkington Plate Company office in Albany two months ago.

About that time, too, burglars got through a hole in the ceiling of Rhodes Brothers' establishment in Tremont street, near Castle square, but were frightened away.

"HOLY JUMPERS" TO CONVERT TENDERLOIN

CHICAGO, May 17.—A campaign to convert the entire Tenderloin district of Chicago has been started by the "Holy Jumpers." One hundred converts are claimed as a result of the first day's work.

"We shall convert the entire Tenderloin," shouted Duke M. Farson, brother of John Farson, banker. Then he started the song "Jump to Jesus." The men and women members of the organization began to jump and sing and dance. The "Jumpers" say a person can get to Heaven only by jumping.

BOATMAN SAVES BOYS FROM DEATH

Matching their skill and strength against a fast rising storm, two Cambridge youths were tipped over on the Charles, near Waltham, less than a hundred feet from the point they launched their canoe, and but for the presence of mind of James Burdin, a boathouse proprietor, who went to their rescue in a motor boat, both would have drowned. The young men are William Jacques, aged 21, and Edward Sutherland.

police and have established alibis which seem without flaw. Allen even volunteered, immediately after establishing his own alibi, to assist the police in their investigation.

In considering the question of motive the police have eliminated the robbery theory and have leaned more to that of home of the watchman, who lives within five minutes' walk of the place, and got the key and opened the barn.

Chief Horton thinks it strange that Johnson did not on last Monday night get the key from the watchman, as he had done on previous occasions, instead of turning back home, although he knew he could spend little more than an hour there before he must catch a car back to the ice plant in order to be on time for work.

It is known that the police have located a man who walked through the lane where Miss Regester made a fight for her life between 1 a. m. and 2 a. m. Tuesday.

At that time the girl's body was lying near the cemetery fence, but it would have been difficult to see it unless the attention of a passerby was attracted to it specially.

and talked reassuringly with the old gentleman, telling him that the authorities were taking every step warranted and were doing as much as they could.

The disappearance from the body of the murdered girl of all jewelry or other possessions which were given her by Ernest Allen, her fiance, seems significant. These were the engraved bracelet, the pink cameo ring and the small leather purse. The small intrinsic value of these makes the robbery motive seem insignificant.

It looks as though the motive were more purely personal, as though the murderer were bound that, after his victim had been slain, her body should be reft of every material token of another man's affections. The ring was snatched from her finger with violence sufficient to lacerate the flesh.

Miss Regester was slain by a left-handed man of an extraordinary strength, that enabled him to drag her bodily in the grip of his fingers on her throat for a long distance, according to the latest theory of the police.

If it was not a left-handed man who strangled her, they say, then the murderer must have twisted his right hand in such a peculiar manner that the imprint of his thumb was on the left side of her throat. This does not seem feasible, and we are certain that the strangler when found will prove to be left-handed.

An examination of the twenty-one bruises on the young woman's throat showed the imprint of a thumb on the left side. Five of the marks were plainer than the rest, which accounts for the further theory that the Regester girl was dragged from Reservoir avenue to the Jewish Cemetery in one hand of the strangler.

Slayer of Giant Strength.

The fact that only one scream was heard and that the young woman, although not of slight build, was practically carried on the one hand of the slayer, proves that he was a man of enormous strength.

The testimony of two witnesses who tell of seeing Chase does not lessen the eagerness of the authorities to communicate with him and ask his assistance in solving the mystery.

The witnesses are Owen Carpenter and his wife Elsie, residents of Rehoboth.

Mrs. Carpenter told Chief Horton that she boarded a trolley at Taunton, Mass., at 6:10 p. m. last Monday and rode a couple of miles to the home of her mother-in-law, with whom she chatted until it was time to catch the 8:45 p. m. car, on which she continued for two miles to Rehoboth.

FEAR CAPTURE OF ROOSEVELT

LONDON, May 17.—Reports from British East Africa about a new campaign against the Mad Mullah have just been received in London. These reports are conjoined in some English papers with the suggestion that ex-President Roosevelt is incurring danger of being captured by the wild Somalis, who are the Mullah's most dangerous followers.

In Mombasa, they declare, the impression exists that Mr. Roosevelt had better keep an eye open for these treacherous fellows, of whom several batches, of from twenty to fifty each, are lurking about the northern boundary of Somaliland and the Protectorate.

"Their very presence," says one report, "in the neighborhood is suspicious, for at most they are only ten days' journey from Nairobi."

Dr. Seaman of New York, however, according to the same dispatch, considers that Mr. Roosevelt runs much greater danger from the tsetse fly and the spirillum tick of Uganda than from either wild beasts or Somalis.

TRIUMVIRATE WARS ON SENATOR SCOTT

ELKINS, W. Va., May 17.—A political triumvirate—Dawson, Dillon and Dixon—recently formed, threatens to dislodge United States Senator Nathan B. Scott as a Representative of West Virginia in the upper House of Congress, to which Dawson's friends are urging him to aspire.

WARM WAVE ON THE WAY

A warm wave is coming.

After the cold drizzles of yesterday and the chill, raw air of the morning, the temperature is slowly rising to-day.

The local forecast is:

"Fair with rising temperature to-day and Tuesday. Light variable winds."

This means that Boston will warm up about to-morrow, giving a return to the straw hat and shirt waist weather of the past week. It will be welcome.

Miss Boston, who was disappointed in her desire to display her Summer finery at church yesterday, can come out to-morrow, if present signs do not fail. She can put on her new peach basket hat and her openwork shirtwaist and her new Spring or Summer suit, dazzling the public in general and mere man in particular, as she is wont to do.

If it is any comfort to you it may be explained that to-day's chill comes from a northeast wind, which blew in here Saturday night from the ocean and is gradually dying out.

Put the Management of Your Household on a Business Basis

An up-to-date business house is provided with every device for conserving effort and saving time and energy so that every manager or clerk can handle as much business as possible.

Apply this principle to your household and you will find that by the installation of an INTERCOMMUNICATING TELEPHONE SYSTEM you can get along with fewer servants, accomplish more, save time and energy, worry and expense.

An Intercommunicating Telephone Set does away with tiresome stair climbing. It enables you to talk to other members of your family in other parts of the house, or to give instructions to the cook, housekeeper, nurse, laundress, gardener, coachman or chauffeur without leaving your room.

It literally places your whole household or estate at your fingers' tips and gives you the further advantage of sending or receiving outward telephone calls from whatever part of the house you may be in—merely a matter of pressing the button.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

If you wish to have your telephone address appear in the Summer Telephone Directory of the Boston Division you must give your order for service at once.

CANON HENSON ANSWERS VAN ALEN ATTACK

"The Christian ministry has a limited function. We are not sacerdotalists," (men who exalt the priesthood) exclaimed Canon Henson before the Congregational ministers at Pilgrim Hall to-day.

This was an indirect answer to the attack made upon him by Rev. Dr. Van Alen.

"The minister is a watchman, a spokesman that is laboring for the unseen things. He is a minister to set forth the principles of life. He is a prominent citizen, using his civic influence everywhere when necessary."

Canon Henson made this additional reply to the claims that Dr. Van Alen has been making for the priesthood of the church, which the Canon poked fun at in this gathering of Congregational ministers.

"What is to be the liberty of speech and thought in the future," he continued. "Just as in proportion as the great trade unions have adopted socialistic views they have become intolerant of independent thinking. Christian Socialism is no longer connected with the honored names of Maurice and Kingsley.

"To-day the self-denying element is absent from it. We want to know where socialism stands with the family, with the individual and with the church, and I cannot see my way towards the profession of a Christian Socialist."

He explained conditions in England and Wales and the growing interest in the subject, referring to a recent event in Cardiff, when sixty ministers recorded their names at a public meeting as members of the Christian Social Union.

He warned ministers to be careful about parasitism, and scored those clergymen who are seeking to be court chaplains.

"King Demos has ascended the throne and is advertising for court chaplains," he exclaimed.

Canon Henson declared that he had been talking on every imaginable subject since he had been in this country and any mistakes that he made must be attributed to the "unbounded hospitality and entertainment he had been receiving."

Bishop Lawrence was present and introduced the Canon.

RICH MAN ELOPES WITH STENOGRAPHER

NEW YORK, May 17.—James Armstrong, a well to do wholesale baker of Brooklyn, has eloped with his seventeen-year-old stenographer, Miss Edith Silberhorn, according to statements the Silberhorn family made to the police. And, according to the same persons, Armstrong hired two ex-pugilists to help him get away with the girl in one of his three racing automobiles.

Armstrong lives at No. 291 Seventh avenue, and although he has a wife and two boys, the youngest only a year old—he is said to have been motoring all over Long Island recently with Miss Silberhorn.

MORSE IS STILL DENIED LIBERTY

NEW YORK, May 17.—In spite of the fact that leading bankers and brokers offered bail for Charles W. Morse in the sum of $135,000, the judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to-day refused to grant him his liberty and took the matter under advisement. Morse was not taken from his cell in the Tombs, although Mrs. Morse and their son, Harry, were in court. Attorney Martin W. Littleton appealed to the judges to set June 30 as the date for hearing argument on Morse's appeal from the decision of the lower court sentencing him to fifteen years' imprisonment.

ROOSEVELT LIONS TO BE MOUNTED

NAIROBI, British East Africa, May 17.—Edmund Heller, one of the zoologists of the Roosevelt expedition, came into Nairobi to-day with some fifty specimens of animal and bird life that are to be cured and preserved here. They include a rhinoceros, six lions, two giraffes, twenty kinds of smaller game and a variety of birds.

GOLD TELEGRAPH KEY FOR TAFT

WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Taft has received a telegraph key mounted on Alaska marble and studded with gold nuggets, with which he will send the signal from Washington opening the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle, June 1.

MRS. HARTJE DEFIANT AS HUSBAND PLEADS FOR RECONCILIATION

Mrs. Mary Hartje and her two children.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 17.—Another sensation has broken in the Hartje divorce case, which was the talk of the country two years ago, when Augustus Hartje, the millionaire paper manufacturer of this city, accused his handsome wife of being too friendly with her coachman, Tom Madine, and with a negro, Clifford Hoe, and endeavored to obtain a divorce from her.

Backed by a Pittsburg man's millions, she fought the case, winning in every court, and in turn brought suit against her husband for a divorce.

The suit comes up to-day, and Hartje in an effort to effect a reconciliation is making a determined effort to have the case postponed.

Hartje, it developed, is known to have said to friends recently that he believed that she would forgive him because of their children for the charges he preferred against her in his divorce action.

Must Retract Charges.

Mrs. Hartje said that the only thing that would lead her to consider the possibility of a reconciliation would be the future of her children, but that if she consented to a withdrawal of her suit it would be necessary for her husband to publicly acknowledge that he had trumped up charges and testimony against her.

She would, she said, always feel that unless such an acknowledgement was made by her husband that her children might consider her guilty of the charges once preferred against her by Hartje.

It is known that the public renunciation by Hartje of the allegations he made against his wife is the only possible basis upon which a reconciliation might be effected.

Friends of Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje declared that there is small hope for the reconciliation between husband and wife.

Mrs. Hartje in making known her terms declared that before she will consider the withdrawal of her action Hartje must admit that he manufactured the coachman incident without the slightest foundation, in fact that he caused the forgery of the Madine letters and bribed persons to testify falsely against his wife.

Well Supplied With Funds.

In consenting to do these things demanded by his wife Hartje could make himself liable to a long term of imprisonment, subornation of perjury and perjury, and it is not believed he can be induced to effect a reconciliation under such rigorous terms.

Mrs. Hartje is now assured of ample funds to carry on her suit against her husband and any other prosecution that she may desire to undertake should she win her suit for divorce.

She was recently visited by an agent of one of Pittsburg's richest men, it is known, who offered her aid to any extent. It is asserted positively, moreover, that all the expenses of Mrs. Hartje thus far have been borne by agents acting under this man, who was determined that her good name must not be defamed.

Turks Sing Hymns as They Go to Scaffold.

CONSTANTINOPLE—Five more men were hanged at 3:30 o'clock this morning in front of the building of Parliament, opposite the mosque of St. Sophia, in Stamboul. They had been found guilty by court-martial of complicity in the murder of their officers in the revolutionary outbreak of April 13. Among them was one non-commissioned officer. The others were junior officers. They sang hymns on their way to execution. Burhan-ed-Din, Abdul Hamid's favorite son, has been examined by court-martial and will probably be imprisoned for an indefinite term. Guards from the American cruiser North Carolina, now at Mersina, are patrolling American property for protection. Many Armenians quartered at the American quarters are afraid to leave. Refugees are huddled in camps, and many are starving. The cruiser Montana has arrived at Alexandretta.

Joan of Arc Fete Broken Up.

PARIS—The three days' fete in celebration of the beatification of Joan of Arc ended with impressive services in Notre Dame. The Royalist Committee of Paris seized the occasion to give a dinner, at which Royalist songs were sung and violent speeches made. Afterward they attempted to parade, but the police broke up the procession and seized the banners.

POSNER TO OCCUPY AN ENTIRE BLOCK

David H. Posner, dealer in men's furnishings, will soon occupy the entire block at the corner of School street and City Hall avenue, and has now attained the distinction of conducting the largest store in his line in New England. He began business about twelve years ago at No. 25 School street, where he occupied a floor space of but 10x15 feet. Now he occupies several stores. He extended his premises to No. 8 City Hall avenue, and then took in quarters at No. 23 School street. He next obtained the stores at Nos. 2 and 4 City Hall avenue, and recently arrangements were made whereby he occupied No. 20 School street. Now he has taken the lease of the quarters occupied by the City Hall Drug Store. He will open a new department for the sale of men's hats, and the same liberal methods which have characterized his policy in the past will be followed in this addition to his business lines.

TWO MILK DRIVERS ACCUSED OF GRAFT

Frank Wolf of No. 13 Broadway place, Somerville, and Frank Hall of Temple street, Somerville, both drivers for the D. Whiting Milk Company of Charlestown, appeared before Judge Bragg in the Charlestown Police Court to-day charged with stealing $520 and $240 respectively from the concern. Associate Judge Corbett of the same court appeared for the defendants, and they both pleaded not guilty. In finding probable cause, Judge Bragg held both men for the Superior Court in $1,000 bail. It is alleged that both men, who delivered milk, made collections and did not make proper returns.

FUNERAL FOR FIVE; 50 GIRL BEARERS

NEW YORK, May 17.—Fifty white-clad girls acted to-day as pallbearers at the funeral of the four girls and the young man who were drowned in the Hackensack River Friday. There was one funeral for the five victims. All Hackensack was in mourning. Father Lambert of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, of whose congregation the victims were all members, was so affected that he could not preach the sermon.

HALE HOLDING UP TAFT APPOINTMENT

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Despite the fact that he had been appointed to the position by President Taft, Lieutenant-Commander H. I. Cone may not, after all, head the bureau of steam engineering of the Navy Department. Confirmation of the appointment is being held up by Senator Hale of Maine because of the Senator's friendship for Rear Admiral Capps, until recently head of the bureau.

BED CLOTHES KILL BABY.

George Lee, the three-months-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee of No. 28 Tyler street, was found dead in bed early to-day by his mother. The child, it is believed, was found suffocated by getting its head under the bed covering. Associate Medical Examiner Leary gave orders to allow the body to remain at the home. He will make an investigation.

OFFER $60,000 FOR CAPTURE OF TRAIN ROBBERS

SPOKANE, Wash., May 17.—Sixty thousand dollars have been offered as a reward for the capture of the six outlaws who held up a Great Northern mail train between Colbert and Mead, and after taking the engine and mail car two miles ahead and looting the mail car of $20,000, sent them back at full speed into the train, causing a crash in which twelve persons were injured. The Great Northern has offered a reward of $10,000 for each outlaw. Two special trains of deputies were rushed from Spokane to the scene of the hold-up, and have started in pursuit of the robber band. It is believed the bandits are the men who have been involved in several other train robberies in the last few months.

While the engine crew was busy switching at Colbert two men sprang into the cab, and thrusting revolvers against the bodies of Engineer William Miller and Fireman John Fall, ordered them to do as commanded.

The engineer and fireman complied and the mail car was cut off from the rest of the train by four other robbers. The locomotive and the mail car were then run up the track a few miles. Next the engineer and his fireman were forced to leave the cab.

Two of the robbers went to the door of the mail car and ordered it opened. Their command was obeyed by Benjamin F. Stumpf, mail clerk, who was hurried away from the car with the engineman by a dozen revolver shots. Manning the locomotive themselves, the outlaws took the mail car down the track and stole the registered mail. Then they started the locomotive back toward the rest of the train and escaped.

Conductor C. L. Robertson had a brakeman cut in the telegraph wire to send word to Spokane. While he was busy telegraphing, about a half hour after the locomotive and the mail car had disappeared, he saw the powerful locomotive careening toward the coaches, in which many persons were asleep, for the robbers had acted quietly in seizing the mail car.

The conductor and another trainman placed a tie on the track to stop their flight, but the cars, although partly stopped by this means, plunged into the coaches, throwing passengers from their seats and cutting them with glass from broken windows.

A trainman, nerved to the task, sprang aboard the locomotive as the collision came and shut off the steam, stopping the havoc.

CHELSEA COLLAPSE CASE ON TO-MORROW

Morris Gordon and Morris Segal, Chelsea contractors, under indictment charged with manslaughter in connection with the killing of nine men on August 25, 1908, by the collapse of a wall in the old Academy of Music in Chelsea square, will be placed on trial to-morrow in the Second Session of the Superior Court before Judge Schofield. The indictment declares that criminal negligence was displayed in using the old wall of the Academy of Music, which was burned in the Chelsea conflagration, for a new building.

GIRL PLEADS GUILTY TO CLOTHING THEFT

PLYMOUTH, May 17.—Ethel Hanley pleaded guilty in Plymouth Court to-day on a charge of stealing wearing apparel from the house of her employer, A. D. Batchelder of No. 55 Main street, Plymouth. She was arrested in the South station, Boston, as she was about to take the train for Montreal to attend, she said, the bedside of her dying mother. Judge Osborne lectured the girl and placed the case on file.

FIGHT PAUPERIZING TO CLOTHING THEFT

Alfred S. Pinkerton of Worcester, Dr. Edward H. Bradford, Leonard W. Ross and Dr. John T. Fish of the trustees of the School for Deformed and Crippled Children were before the Committee on Public Charitable Institutions to-day to urge a change in the law so that the children of poor people who are unable to pay board for them shall not be pauperized, as they are now, but the city or town may charge a nominal fee without enrollment as a pauper.

MAYOR BACK; THROAT STILL TROUBLES HIM

Mayor Hibbard was back at his desk in City Hall to-day, much improved in health as the result of his brief sojourn at Harrison, Me. His throat, however, has not improved as fast as expected, and he has had to decline a large number of invitations to appear publicly.

DEWEY $76,000,000 SUIT SET FOR JUNE 2

Former Judge Henry S. Dewey's suit for $76,000,000 against the officers of the Good Government Association for alleged injury to his character was to-day assigned by Judge Brown of the Superior Court to be tried in the Second Session of the Superior Court on June 2. Judge Brown ruled that Judge Dewey's motion to increase the ad damnum should be ruled upon by the trial judge who sits in the case.

ESSEX BRIDGE HEARING.

A hearing was given to Engineer Robert Evans, representing the County of Essex, upon the changes desired in the approaches for the new Haverhill bridge, before the Committee on Roads and Bridges to-day. What is asked for is not an appropriation, but an enabling act to permit the county to relocate highways and close others in order to complete the proper approaches to the new bridge. There was no opposition.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

'LOST' MAY DOWES WAS ENJOYING THE TIME OF HER LIFE

May Dowes.

While her heartbroken mother was appealing to the police for assistance in locating her missing daughter, thirteen years old, Ethel May Dowse was having the time of her life. She disappeared Saturday from her home at No. 91 Hancock street, Everett, with a $5 while her mother gave her to pay a dog license.

Mrs. Dowse thought she had met with foul play, or had wandered away in a fit of melancholy because of a scolding she had received a day or two ago. She was at the Boston police headquarters this morning and notified the police and then she started home.

As she was passing a theatre she glanced in the lobby and there was Ethel May waiting in line to buy a ticket. Her mother descended upon her and Ethel began to cry and declare that she did not want to go home. She said she had secured a job washing dishes at Revere Beach and wanted to earn her own living.

SMALLPOX IN YANKEE BALL CAMP AGAIN

CLEVELAND, O., May 17.—A smallpox panic struck the camp of the Yankees in this city.

Trainer Jack Burke who complained of a slight illness when the train left Detroit Thursday, is in bed with a high fever and believes he has the disease that held Hal Chase in the pest house at Augusta three weeks this Spring.

Dr. Hannum is attending him. The doctor refused to have anything more to do with the case unless requested, because he says Burke refused the kind of treatment he prescribed.

"I though that he had symptoms of typhoid fever, said Dr. Hannum, "because that begins with a high fever and when I took Burke's temperature it was above 102. I did not know at the time that he had been rubbing this player who has so lately been discharged from the pest house, but there is a possibility that he has contracted the disease in that way."

Burke, according to several of the players, is convinced from what he knows of Chase's case that he has smallpox. When Manager Stallings learned that his condition was alarming he called Hal Chase out of a card party in one of the player's rooms and sent him down to look at the sick man.

Chase refused to say what he thought about Burke's symptoms.

It is understood that unless Burke showed signs of improvement to-day he will be immediately hurried back to New York.

FLEET MAKES BIG MACKEREL CATCH

GLOUCESTER, May 17.—Gloucester is rejoicing to-day over news from New York and Newport of big hauls of mackerel by Gloucester vessels. Mackerel apparently showed up for a stretch of 150 miles Saturday, extending from Five Fathom Bank, where a part of the fleet made good hauls, to Shinnecock, off Long Island, where those of the fleet in Newport made their catches.

The following Gloucester vessels are reported in New York: Constellation, 30,000 medium mackerel; Aloha, 22,000 mediums; Marguerite Haskins, 22,000; Rex, 18,000; Diana, 18,000, with the George Parker reported bound in with a fare. The Gloucester vessels at Newport are: Effie M. Prior, with 25,000 large fish; Mary E. Harty, bound in.

The price for the fish is twenty cents for large and fifteen cents for mediums, and at this figure it is estimated that the value of the catch is $25,000.

Tailoring Talk You Can Understand

You've yourself to blame when you try to buy a tailored suit for less than our famous $20 standard and get stung. Thirty-six years' experience teaches us that the lowest possible price that can be named for an up-to-the minute tailored suit is $20. We've proved this in a hundred ways. You or your neighbor has, too; no doubt. Of course, you'll not take the risk again. "Stung" once is sufficient for a man who knows what's what. There's something essential to good tailoring missing in a suit that can be sold for less than $20. Are you foolish enough to try and discover this "something?" We set a style pace in our $20 Suits that others find it difficult to follow at $30.

ORDER BROKER ARRESTED FOR HUGE SWINDLE

Herbert Moseley, secretary of the Growler Copper Company of Boston, procured from Judge Burke in the Municipal Court to-day a warrant charging Charles Leighton Roxwell of London, Paris and New York with the larceny of $2,000 from the Growler company. Immediately afterwards he took proceedings for the extradition of Foxwell from Washington, where the latter was held Saturday after a nation-wide hunt.

Moseley accuses Foxwell of obtaining thousands of dollars from his company and from several Boston men, under false pretences. It is said the amount may aggregate $500,000. He saw Foxwell on the street in Washington, and, after having him jailed, hurried here for the warrant. The specific larceny on which the warrant was issued is alleged to have occurred in January, 1908.

A dispatch from Washington to-day says that Foxwell will not resist extradition and declares that he is the victim of a mistake. His beautiful young wife is firmly confident of her husband's innocence, and has consoled him by frequent visits to the jail in which he is confined. No effort has been made to secure his release, even on bail.

Foxwell is now held simply on Moseley's representation.

Wife Cheers Husband.

Mrs. Foxwell, attired in a princess gown of coral crepe trimmed with white Irish crochet lace and with sleeves of pale yellow chiffon messaline, caused a flutter of excitement when she first appeared at the First Precinct Station in Washington. She found her husband occupying the cell assigned a week ago to John C. Davis, a lawyer, accused of obtaining approximately half a million dollars from Washington women.

As she entered her husband's cell, Foxwell sprang to his feet, threw his arms about her neck and kissed her fondly. They remained in each other's embrace for some minutes, until the policeman who was guarding the prisoner advised the wife that she must occupy a chair at the door and not enter the cell. Mrs. Foxwell acquiesced quietly, and for half an hour she talked in a low, earnest tone with her husband.

Mrs. Foxwell paid a second visit to the station house. She was accompanied by James H. Hayden, an attorney, and the prisoner and the lawyer held a lengthy consultation. At the conclusion Mr. Hayden said no attempt would be made to secure the release of the prisoner. Captain Foxwell, he said, was perfectly satisfied to remain where he was until Boston detectives arrived to escort him to the scene of his alleged transactions.

"Mistake," Says Prisoner.

Mrs. Foxwell visited the prisoner several times afterward, bringing him dainties and cigars. On her last visit she handed her husband several telegrams, and when he read them his face brightened for the first time since his arrest. To a reporter the prisoner said:

"I'm comfortable, but I want to get to Boston as soon as I can. Until I have reached an agreement with my attorneys I shall say nothing. A grievous mistake has been made, and only time will correct the error."

In addition to the various mining companies of Boston, New York and Philadelphia which are said to have done business with Captain Foxwell, Inspector Boardman of Washington, chief of detectives, said to-day that the Baltimore authorities believe the man sold bonds there. It is said that he lived at the home of a Mrs. Hall, No. 1,212 West Landale street, Baltimore, in 1905. Detectives will probably go to Baltimore to look up the prisoner's record, if one exists.

Mr. Moseley, at his office, No. 14 Kilby street, told the AMERICAN his story of Foxwell's dealings with the Growler Copper Company. He said:

"It was in January of last year that Foxwell came to me and represented himself as an agent of the Societies Generale of Paris, a syndicate that floats bonds. He said that the society would take $2,500,000 worth of bonds of the Growler Copper Company. He wanted $12,500 as commission for himself. Foxwell was paid $3,000, with a promise of $2,000 when I received a cable message from Paris accepting the contract on the part of the company.

"On January 22 such a cablegram was received. On January 24 $2,000 was paid to Isaac Copeland, attorney for Foxwell. Later we got into communication with the Societies Generale and the whole deal was repudiated. I think Foxwell must have cleaned up in all about $30,000 through different schemes worked in Boston."

ENTICING BOY AWAY CHARGED TO WOMAN

ATHOL, May 17.—Mrs. Ellen Stiles of Market place was arrested to-day on charges of having enticed ten-year-old Harry Att from his home and making him drink beer and whiskey. Mrs. Stiles says she merely took the boy for a drive. Harry Att disappeared last Thursday and returned Friday noon while the police were dragging the river for him. Subsequently Daniel McLean, who was found in South Athol woods, was arrested on charges of intoxication and of cruelty to animals. A carriage nearby was wrecked and the horse was badly overdriven. McLean's case was put on probation till August 28.

THOUGHT BRIDE RICH, NOW WANTS DIVORCE

SPRINGFIELD, May 17.—In applying to the Superior Court for annulment of his marriage to Miss Esther Harris of St. Louis, Dr. Louis Hirstch, formerly of Boston and Providence, declares, as unusual grounds for his suit, that Mrs. Hirstch has "extreme melancholia." The couple were married last January, but lived together only three weeks. Hirstch asserts that he was led to believe the St. Louis woman was wealthy, but that after marrying her he discovered that this was not the fact.

NEW HONORE BRIDE HAS UPSET CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 17.—Society is asking who Mrs. Harriet E. Baker is. The report from New York that she is the bride of Harry H. Honore, Jr., youngest brother of Mrs. Potter Palmer and brother-in-law of General Frederick D. Grant, is the principal topic here. She is said to belong in New York, but that is all that is known about her. The marriage was very quiet, the only witness being a clerical secretary. The bridegroom is in the real estate business here. He is forty-eight years old. His first wife, who was the daughter of Russell J. Jones, died in Florence in 1902.

THIRD DOCTOR TO DIE OF SPECIALTY

NEW YORK, May 17.—Dr. Gerardus Hilles-Wynkoop is dead from appendicitis. He is the third prominent physician of this city to fall a victim to the disease which he had made his specialty in the last six months. Dr. Andrew J. McCosh, who had devoted most of his years while practicing to trepanning, died several months ago in the Presbyterian Hospital from a fractured skull. Cancer, which had been Dr. Bull's life study, caused his death in Savannah after a year's illness about two months ago.

OH THERE, FAIR CINDERELLAS! GET BUSY NOW

The Cinderella Foot contest of the BOSTON AMERICAN to find the smallest and prettiest foot in Greater Boston is nearing the end.

Only four days more remain for entries. The entry list closes next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. No entries will be received after that hour. Bear this in mind, you girls who are thinking of competing.

As a mater of fact, it would be well for all prospective contestants to enter as soon as possible. The Cinderella Editor is kept quite busy receiving entries, filing applications and drawings of the foot. Kindly do not wait till the eleventh hour, but come in to-day or to-morrow if possible.

To-morrow or Wednesday the Cinderella Editor will announce the Board of Judges for this contest. This announcement will be of general interest and of particular interest to the contestants. The judges will be capable ones, well known for their artistic qualities. Every contestant may rest assured that she, or her foot, rather, will get a square deal.

Has Spanish Instep.

To-day the Cinderella Editor prints a picture of Mrs. R. Pinks of No. 41 Hollander street, Roxbury, and of her foot, which is entered in the contest. No names have been printed in this contest heretofore, but the Cinderella Editor asked and secured Mrs. Pinks's permission to use her name and publish her picture on account of an extra interest which attaches to her entry. She is the woman alluded to last week who entered the famous jewelled slipper contest held ten years ago in Boston by Miss Virginia Harned, the actress. Mrs. Pinks was next to the winner. She put on the jewelled slipper, but the winner was able to slip it on a trifle easier, in the opinion of the judges. Mrs. Pinks's foot has the celebrated "Spanish instep," which is considered by artists and sculptors as a mark of beauty in a foot.

Here are the conditions of the contest:

There are four prizes. Three are offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN for the smallest and prettiest foot, as follows:

First—A golden slipper inlaid with jewels.

Second—A silver scrolled slipper.

Third—$25 in cash.

Then there is a fourth and a separate prize. This is nothing less than a place "A Stubborn Cinderella" company, now playing at the Colonial Theatre. This offer is made by Manager Arthur Houghton of the company, on behalf of Mort. H. Singer, proprietor of the production.

Three Judges to Decide.

The contest is open till next week Thursday, May 20, for entries. Then a board of three competent judges will select from all the entries the thirty best to qualify.

From these thirty the judges will name the three winners of the two slipper prizes and the $25 cash prize offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

From the same thirty Manager Houghton will name his choice for a member of "A Stubborn Cinderella" company.

Fill out the accompanying entry blank and bring it to the Cinderella Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN at No. 82 Summer street. Make an outline drawing of your foot and bring that, too. Or you can have the outline drawing made at this office. The Cinderella Editor will also explain about having the foot photographed.

Contestants must be sixteen years old or over, and at least five feet in height.

COLLEGE LAWN PARTY.

Arrangements for the annual Boston College garden party, that will be held this year on June 19, at University Heights, Newton, are being completed. Dr. Eugene A. McCarthy, '84, of Cambridge, who is president of the alumni association of the college, together with Father Gasson, are looking after the main details, while other committees composed of men of the alumni are looking after the minor details.

HERE'S A FAMOUS CINDERELLA AND HER SPANISH FOOT

MOSQUITOES PUT CREW ON SICK LIST

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mosquitoes put on the sick list nearly the entire crew of the British steamer Verastou, which arrived to-day from Kingston, Jamaica, manned by a new quota of men and officers. The ship left fifteen men in the hospital at Jamaica suffering from malaria, and in addition one man had died at sea and another at Kingston. The Verastou was up the Madeira River 1,700 miles from Para. Although the crew slept in screened bunks they could not escape the malaria-laden insects.

CREW OF BATTLESHIP MISSOURI ENTERTAINS TOUR CANDIDATE

Boys and Girls in Great Voting Contest Set Hot Pace in Chase After Leaders.

ALL aboard for the next stretch in the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Great Free Vacation Tours Contest!

All aboard for the greatest race that has ever been run for school boys; for the grandest European tours ever offered to school girls and for the most magnificent American Tours to boys and girls.

Who's going to take them? That's easy to tell. YOU will, if you work hard enough. Now that you know where you stand, there is no reason why you cannot set your own pace and give the other contestants a merry race for the lead.

The standing will be published each Sunday from now on and it is easier to figure from week to week how best to beat your opponents. With the vote values of subscriptions, it is possible to pile up enormous totals. You may lead to-day but look out for the other fellow next week. He may be noiselessly creeping up behind if you are not vigilant. Make up your mind to get a certain number of votes by paid-in-advance subscriptions each week, and if you can get more than that number so much the better.

Keep to the front all through and when it comes to the final days of voting you will have no anxiety as to who will win. When your friends see you making such a hard fight they will gallantly come to your aid. They will know you are an earnest worker and who would not help such a boy or girl?

U. S. S. Missouri's Champion.

A determined young candidate loomed up to-day in the person of Ida Rumrill, No. 75 Orchard street, Malden, who is one of the Navy Yard candidates. She was entertained at luncheon in the officers' quarters of the battleship Missouri and was introduced to the crew, who gave her a hearty and royal reception on board. They have unanimously agreed to back her up in every way and extended to her a standing invitation to visit the ship.

George H. Hanlon, No. 109 Hancock street, Dorchester, a caller at the Around-the-World Department to-day, made the following statement:

"When first I entered the contest I was satisfied to try for one of the American Tour Prizes, but now that my friends have seen my high standing in the list they are determined that with their assistance and backing, I shall be a winner of the big prize and I hope to be the FIRST among the four boys who will Race Around-the-World."

"I'm Out to Win."

Two boys determined to improve their standing this week are: Leo A. Hughes, No. 777 Columbia road, Dorchester, and Jacob Holmes, No. 4 Mystic avenue, Melrose. Both are enthusiastic workers and Holmes, in a conversation to-day, said: "You just watch me let the other fellows get away from me. Not much. I'm out to win. They have got to get up early to beat me."

Two hustling suburbanites from the town of Cliftondale are Charles Scott, of No. 19 Birch street, and Elsie M. Brown, No. 5 Maple street. Scott is planning a musical and literary entertainment next Thursday evening at which Mr. Peter McNally will deliver the lecture. Miss Brown is a candidate of the Plumbers' Local Union No. 77 of Lynn and is a student of high standing in her class.

Another young man who does not intend to take a back seat in this Race Around the World is T. Hart Anderson, No. 662 Western avenue, Lynn. He is spreading broadcast some very attractive cards appealing to his friends to place their subscriptions for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN and send him Around the World. He is the candidate of the exclusive Oxford Club.

Another Police Candidate.

William Blankenship, of Oak Bluff, Mass., is being materially helped by the New Bedford police. He is the only candidate in Martha's Vineyard and expects to poll a large number of vote subscriptions from the Summer residents. He is well up in front now and means to win.

A determined visitor to the Around-the-World Department was Gladys Waters, No. 11 Sanborn avenue, Somerville. She says that her friends are encouraged by her high standing in the race and she is already making plans to spend her vacation in the European capitals, London, Paris, Berlin and all the fashionable watering places in the European countries.

Elvina Hald, No. 78 Perry street, Brookline, is still steadily piling in her subscriptions, happily confident that she also is going to spend her vacation in Europe.

Says Lynn Must Win.

Grace Foss, No. 37 Lakeview avenue, Lynn, is keeping well in the foreground. She is determined that Lynn is going to be represented when it comes to setting sail for the foreign ports.

The following is a letter received to-day by the Around-the-World Editor:

"Please find Booster Membership Card. The Vaudevillers of Boston will leave no stone unturned to have our candidate, Miss Marion Coogan, No. 108 Myrtle street, Boston, win the prize. We will poll our heaviest votes at the last minute. We have organized a Boosters' Club, a union, and will elect president, secretary and treasurer and by way of novelty we will insure our three officers for $1,000 each from June to June, one year in advance, with a motto, 'A booster always, and a knocker never.' We will win. Keep your eye on us.

HAMILTON and BUCKLEY,
Promoters of the Coogan Boosters' Union No. 89.

Those boys and girls who have not already secured buttons may do so by calling on the Around-the-World Editor. He will be glad to supply your needs. Also ask for the souvenir postals.

Wake Up, Get Busy.

Many boys and girls have come forward to say that they are going to devote more time than ever to subscription getting. Those who stand high are eager to retain their places, but those who are lower on the list are determined to wrest the position away from them. The real battle is on in full force and promises to be both interesting and intense.

Wake up, boys and girls. If your name does not happen to be at the top it is up to you to get it there. In one day's work you can climb high and fast. All sorts of totals are possible and you should clamor for first place. Then when you have secured it, hold fast. Rouse your friends! Tell them to give you a boost in the way of subscriptions. You need them and some time they may need you. Remember, the boys and girls of to-day are the men and women of the future. If you win one of those trips you will have taken a great stride towards manhood and womanhood. You will be equipped with actual experience.

Strike while the iron hot. Get after the subscriptions. There is no reason why you should not fire them at the Around-the-World Department like a gatling gun. You can too, if you will only try. WORK, PLUG, HUSTLE. Who can beat the followers of these mottoes?

Here I Am! Candidate for the Boston American Race Around the World

Save me your votes cut from the Boston American and I will call for them—but best of all let me have your subscription for the Sunday American. You all buy it, why not let me have your subscription and thus insure my winning. $2.50 pays for a whole year of the Sunday American and each subscription gives me 2500 votes.

I am the "Jig-Saw Jumble" man and let and sell "Jig-Saw Jumbles" that are regular "Cut-Ups," fanciful—fractious and facinating—good for "that tired feeling." Four candidates in World Tours and postal card plan of campaign.

STANDING ON SUNDAYS.

Hereafter the standing of the contestants in the Race Around the World, Tours to Europe and American Trips Contest will be printed every Sunday. The lists will close each Wednesday at 6 p. m. for publication on the following Sunday.

RESIGNS AS CAPTAIN TO WIN WORLD TOUR

Bernard Sheridan O'Kane has resigned as captain of the Boston College baseball team to make a more strenuous campaign for the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Race Around the World. He is determined to win. His friends are determined that he shall win.

O'Kane is the most popular athlete at the college and a member of the senior class. O'Kane's classmates have arranged a dance at Intercolonial Hall on Friday evening, June 4th, to further this candidacy. A feature of this affair is the arrangement for starlight and moonlight dance.

Several plans of campaign have been mapped out by O'Kane's friends and schoolfellows, who have determined that he shall not alone win, but that he shall top the voting list for the great tour prize.

"MRS. EDDY REWROTE THE LORD'S PRAYER"

NEW YORK, May 17.—Those who attended Dr. S. McArthur's Current Events class at the Calvary Baptist Church yesterday to hear his discussion of "Common Sense and Eddyism," heard him say:

"I am a Christian Scientist, being both a Christian and a Scientist, but I am not an Eddyite. Eddyism is a violation of common sense in philosophy, in rhetoric and in religion.

"I think she is guilty of unpardonable presumption. She has actually rewritten the Lord's prayer. I scarcely dare to trust myself to give her version of the Lord's supper. I find every Christian sense shamed by her travesty of this ordinance. I feel that no one who bows down before the name of Jesus can think of her work without trembling.

"A word on the mercenary spirit shown by this entire cult. As Mark Twain has said, 'The Christian Science Bible is six times as expensive as other books. Christian Science churches have no charities to support. Churches that give, have nothing to hide.' Mark Twain says further, and this statement I myself have proved the truth of: 'There is no evidence of a farthing being spent for this purpose by this trust. What becomes of the immense amount of money that accrues from the sale of this book?'"

BOYS FIND $800 CLOTH.

The Somerville police have 400 yards of blue cloth for which they want an owner. It was found by several boys early last evening under a freight car on the Mystic branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad. It was in two bales. The police say that it must be worth at least $2 a yard.

CZAR OUTWITS MOB, WILL NOT GO TO LONDON

By W. T. STEAD.

LONDON, May 17.—When the Russian Emperor visits England this Summer he will not come to London. A small but noisy section of extreme English Radicals imagine they can promote the cause of freedom in Russia by organising a mob demonstration against the sovereign who granted representative institutions to Russia and who made the Anglo-Russian entente. Hence they are hoping the Czar may drive through London, but they will be disappointed.

There never has been any intention on the Czar's part to make other than a sea trip. As King Edward and President Fallieres went to Reval and not to St. Petersburg, so the Czar will go to the Solent and Brest, not to London and Paris.

After calling at Brest he will continue his voyage around Spain and Portugal to Italy.

Friends of Armenia report that the Young Turks now control the situation in Silicia, but the situation is really terrible. Forty thousand persons are homeless and starving. Smallpox is epidemic and urgent appeals for help are received.

The news of the American's campaign for the initiative of the United States is warmly welcomed, although all agree that the Young Turks now in power must be allowed a chance to show they can restore order.

Lord Halsbury, the over-greenest of Lord Chancellors, will preside at the inaugural meeting of a new society entitled the True Temperance Association. Its object is to reform rather than abolish saloons by introducing the German beer garden idea.

Russia is proceeding in the opposite direction. In Russia no vodka can be bought for "consumption on the premises," thereby destroying the social functions of the saloon. Nevertheless, the sale of drink in Russia is increasing. In 1907 Russia made a profit of $290,000,000 on the sale of $375,000,000 worth of vodka.

ROOSEVELT CAUSE OF CIGARETTE WAR

CHICAGO, May 17.—Lucy Page Gaston, superintendent of the Anti-Cigarette League, expresses regret over the report that Kermit Roosevelt has taken 6,000 cigarettes, 825 pipes and a great quantity of tobacco into Africa as presents for the natives.

"I can hardly believe the report," she said. "In view of the prestige of the Roosevelt expedition, the scattering of such gifts undoubtedly will mean the rapid spread of the cigarette habit among the natives. Other presents might have been used.

"What makes it hard for me to understand is that such presents should be taken unless the former President and his son themselves are addicted to the tobacco habit. Several years ago Carrie Nation tore a picture of President Roosevelt from the wall of my office, asking what I meant by having the photograph of a cigarette smoker in the headquarters of our league. She said she knew Mr. Roosevelt used tobacco."

Madam, See How Much You Are Losing

The raw milk you serve is germ-laden. The raw milk you cook with is only a half-milk. And see what you miss in convenience. Yet you pay more for this milkman's milk than your neighbors pay for Van Camp's.

Some day you will quit the milkman as scores of your neighbors have done.

You will buy Van Camp's Milk by the case, and have your own cow in the kitchen.

You will do this when you cook one dish with Van Camp's; when you learn what milk should be.

We are trying to hurry the day for your own sake. You are missing more than you know.

But the day will come anyway. Up-to-date women won't cling to out-of-date ways.

No Disease Germs

The bane of raw milk is disease germs. For any germ in milk breeds with frightful rapidity.

There may be germs of consumption from tubercular cows, which are common. Infections may come from diseased milkmen or from dirty dairies.

These germs make raw milk the most terrible foe of humanity. For one thing, two-thirds our infant mortality is due to them.

Van Camp's milk is germless.

Our cows are inspected; so are the men who milk them. Our dairies are sanitary. Our buildings are built without wood. We make a business of cleanliness.

Then Van Camp's is pasteurized after the cans are sealed. Not a germ of any kind can remain in it.

Nothing But Milk

Van Camp's is simply rich Holstein milk, with two-thirds the water evaporated. Nothing whatever is added. Nothing is subtracted save water.

It's not a peculiar milk.

Our cows are the finest breed. Our dairies are in the best dairying sections. Our milk is evaporated while it is fresh.

That slight almond flavor—apparent only when the milk is drunk cold—is due to sterilization. It means nothing added. It indicates simple purity.

When you heat the milk—as in cooking or coffee—the almond flavor disappears. You have then the natural flavor of milk or cream, save our surprising richness.

Six Cents Per Quart

Van Camp's is as thick as thick cream—so thick that you add one part water for coffee. Yet it doesn't cost half what you pay your milkman for cream.

Add two parts water and you have rich milk. The cost of such milk, when you buy Van Camp's by the case, is but six cents per quart.

Then you have no waste—no milk left over. That saving, in itself, is enormous.

So you have a cow in your kitchen—rich milk or cream whenever you want it. And it costs less than hand-to-mouth buying.

You have a pure, rich milk for less than you pay your milkman.

Matchless Milk Dishes

Just make one milk dish with Van Camp's. Note the wonderful flavor and richness. Then you'll forever use it.

Yet that flavor is not artificial. It comes solely from the whole, rich milk.

You are used to cooking with half-milk—you who buy from the milkman. For milkman's milk separates, before and after you get it.

The butter fat rises; the solids fall. You get so you don't know what whole milk means.

You get all the milk in Van Camp's.

But Be Careful

Condensed milk is half sugar. You can't use it for cooking. Don't think that Van Camp's is like that.

And don't think that all evaporated milks are alike.

Van Camp's Milk shows about 8 per cent of butter fat. That's because we use Holstein milk, and take out two-thirds the water.

But milk less rich, and with more water left in, may still be called "evaporated."

If you'll compare Van Camp's with other brands, you will see what a difference there is. Yet others cost as much as Van Camp's.

Van Camp's Milk comes in 5 and 10-cent cans, at your grocer's. It is put up at our dairies, in five states, where we milk 20,000 Holstein cows.

GOV. DRAPER'S VETO OF EIGHT HOUR LAW---HERE IT IS IN FULL

Governor Draper's veto of the eight-hour bill on public works, filed on Saturday, was read this afternoon in the House of Representatives, and action was deferred until Wednesday.

The text of the veto is sweeping in its character. He charges that the bill is one "for putting unnecessary and unwise restrictions on business and labor of the Commonwealth, and making some men prima facie criminals instead of considering them innocent until they are proven guilty."

The section which makes it a prima facie case of violation, simply because a man works more than eight hours, the Governor declares is "unjust, improper, if not entirely unconstitutional." The raising of the penalty from $50 fine for a violation to $1,000, or six months imprisonment, or both, the Governor declares is "too drastic."

He also says the bill is unconstitutional because it contains no clause providing for the exemption of persons whose contracts were made before the act went into effect. This is the full text of the vote:

The Governor's Message.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

I return herewith without my approval, a bill entitled, "An Act to Constitute Eight Hours a Day's Work for Public Employes." This is a misnomer of the bill, because it is already law that a day's work for "public employes" shall be eight hours.

Chapter 269 of the Acts of 1907 contains the following provisions: "Eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all laborers, workmen and mechanics now or hereafter employed by or on behalf of the Commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town which has accepted the provisions of section 20 of chapter 106 of the Revised Laws."

The present bill under consideration makes various changes in this existing law.

Another one of the provisions of the existing law is that "no laborer, workman or mechanic so employed shall be required to work more than eight hours in any one calendar day."

The proposed law makes it "unlawful for any officer of the Commonwealth or of any county therein, or of any such city or town, or for any such contractor or sub-contractor, or other person whose duty it shall be to employ, direct or control the service of such laborers, workmen or mechanics, to require or permit any such laborer, wokman or mechanic to work more than eight hours in any one calendar day, except in cases of extraordinary emergency."

"Unwarrantable Interference."

In this sentence the difference between the proposed and the existing law is in the use of the words "require or permit" in place of the words "shall be requested or required" to work more than eight hours in one calendar day.

This is a very drastic change, and seems to me to be needless. I further think it is an unwarrantable interference with the right of the workingman to work more than eight hours in a day if he so desires.

Another change suggested by the new law appears in Section 3, where it proposes "that any agent or official of the Commonwealth, or of any county therein, or of any city or town, or any contractor or sub-contractor or any agent or person acting on behalf of any contractor of sub-contractor who violates any provision of this act shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment for each offence."

The present law provides that any such person as described in the first part of Section 3 above quoted who violates any provision of the act 'shall be subject to a penalty of $50 for each offence."

This proposed bill increases the penalty from a fine of $50 for eah offence to a fine not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment for six months, or by both suhc fine and imprisonment, for such offence. This seems to me to be altogether too drastic a penalty for such an offence and one that ought not to be enacted into law.

Seicion 5 of the proposed act provides "that at any trial arising under the provisions of this act evidence that laborers, workmen or mechanics have worked or are working over eight hours in any one calendar day shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of the provisions of this act."

Guilty Before Trial.

This provision seems to me to be absolutely unjust and improper, if not entirely unconstitutional. This would make the defendant in a cause under this act adjudged prima facie guilty before trial, and he would be obliged to prove his innocence rather than compel the complainant to prove him guilty. This to my mind is an unwarrantable change in the common law which would be absolutely unjust to part of our citizens, and could only be defended on the ground that laboring men working for the State or on public works must be protected by law in an entirely different way than other laboring men who happened to be employed on other classes of work. This would, to my mind, be an unwarranted reflection on their independence and standing, and would also be class legislation of the worst kind.

There is one other defect in this bill which I am informed and believe would make it absolutely unconstitutional. It has no saving clause concerning contracts entered into prior to the passage of the act. It is unjust in this respect and unconstitutional.

I further believe that the effect of this law would be to drive much business now done in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to other States, and therefore work a great hardship on manufacturers, contractors and laboring men in Massachusetts, as it would deprive the manufacturers and contractors of work which they ought to have and wuld deprive the men who work for them of an opportunity to get employment on such work. The restrictions of this bill could not be carried out in regard to contractors outside the Commonwealth who are furnishing work for the State, and they would therefore have a great advantage in competitive work.

I do not believe it is wise to handicap our manufacturers and laboring men with unnecessary restrictions of this kind.

As I said earlier, it is not a bill to constitute eight hours a 'day's work for public employes, but it is a bill for putting unnecessary and unwise restrictions on business and labor of the Commonwealth, and making some men prima facie criminals instead of considering them innocent until they are proven guilty.

(Signed) EBEN S. DRAPER.

A. F. of L. Counsel Replies.

Frederick W. Mansfield, counsel for the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, to-day gave out his arguments in favor of the provisions of the bill. He declared that section 5, to which Governor Draper especially objected, was put in at the suggestion of a public prosecutor, who said the law could not be enforced without it.

If evidence is brought into court that a defendant has been causing men to work more than eight hours in any one calendar day, why shouldn't it be considered a prima facie case against him?" asks Mr. Mansfield, "what sympathy is he entitled to, or what consideration any more than the one who uses short lobsters or has in his possession the tainted fish or the docked horse?"

As to making the penalty $1,000 fine maximum or six months' imprisonment maximum, Mr. Mansfield says the old penalty was so small as to render the law practically worthless.

REAL ESTATE MORTGAGES ON THE INCREASE

Real estate sales and mortgages for the past week both showed a big increase over the records for the corresponding weeks of 1908 and 1907. The amount of mortgages was the largest ever filed in Suffolk county, because of the instrument for $30,000,000 given by the American Buildings Trust.

The files of the Real Estate Exchange show the following entries of record at the Suffolk Registry of Deeds for the week ending May 15:

	1909.	1908.	1907.
Number transfers.	632	503	491
Number mortgages.	283	201	195
Amount mortgages.	$31,168,308	$565,890	$714,400

The following table, also compiled by the Real Estate Exchange, gives each day's transactions for the week beginning May 10 and ending May 15:

	Sales.	Mtgs.	Am't Mtgs.
May 10	107	41	$132,220
May 11	90	35	97,400
May 12	97	48	243,780
May 13	125	58	30,324,100
May 14	106	49	163,070
May 15	107	57	207,711
Total	632	283	$31,168,308

In the record of sales to-day suburban property was once again the big feature.

In the South End the interest in the three-story and basement swell-front brick house and 1,900 square feet of land at No. 150 West Canton street has been transferred by James M. Burke et al. to Laurence Duffy. The estate is assessed for a total of $8,500, of which $3,400 is on the land.

Deal in Brighton.

In Brighton John H. Sullivan has purchased from Charles S. Dana et al., trustees, the large tract of land and small frame house at the corner of Lake street and Appleton road, extending to the Newton line. The plot contains 321,203 square feet of land, assessed for a total of $12,500, of which $10,500 is on the land.

The Boston Missionary and Church Extension Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church has purchased from Jacob Mosser the frame church building now used as a garage and 6,100 square feet of land on Howard avenue, near Dudley street. The property is assessed for $4,800, of which $3,800 is on the land.

Nellie L. D. Tearle, guardian; John H. Tearle and wife and Orrin R. Dickey have sold to Hannah C. Wiberg the three frame houses and 4,500 square feet of land at Nos. 1831 33 Dorchester avenue, corner of Nos. 3 and 5 Northam park, Dorchester, assessed for a total of $12,700, of which $1,000 is on the land.

Dorchester Property Sold.

Catherine M. Black has sold to Joseph P. May and wife the frame house and 3,926 square feet of land at No. 41 Bullard street, near Bowdoin street, Dorchester. The estate is taxed on a total valuation of $7,500, of which $1,000 is on the land.

Catherine McKenna, trustee, has sold to Meta E. Kohlgren the three-apartment frame house and 2,371 square feet of land at No. 139 Bowdoin street, near Trescot street. The property is assessed for a total of $6,300, of which $1,300 is on the land.

John J. Cadigan and wife have sold to Jennie G. Saeger the frame house and 5,125 square feet of land at No. 171 Glenway street, near Harvard street, Dorchester. The estate is taxed for $6,200, of which $1,700 is on the land.

John H. Robinson et al., trustees, have sold to Peter F. Hanley the frame house and 4,035 square feet of land at Nos. 389-395 Neponset street, corner of Minot street, Dorchester. The property is assessed for a total of $4,500, of which $1,000 is on the land.

In Roxbury a frame house, stable and 5,500 square feet of land on Washington street, near Kingsbury street, assessed for a total of $5,000, have been sold by Albert Wetherbee et al. to the Washington Realty Investment Association. The land is rated for $8,800.

Transfer in Roxbury.

C. Louis Berger has sold to Mary E. Fealey the frame house and 2,400 square feet of land at No. 1 Murray avenue, off Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, assessed for $3,400.

Celia Urofsky has sold to Celia Segal a plot of 4,000 square feet of land, assessed for 35 cents a foot, on Holworthy street, near Harold street, Roxbury. The same grantor has sold to Myer Cherenson a plot of 5,100 feet of land, assessed for 35 cents a foot, on Holworthy street, Roxbury.

Warren F. Freeman of the Kimball building has sold for Paul Hemphill his property at No. 177 East River street, Hyde Park, consisting of a cottage house of seven rooms and about 7,000 square feet of land, all assessed for $1,900. Eugene P. Grant was the purchaser.

A WARNING TO SLEEPING CAR FLIRTS

NEW YORK, May 17.—When the Buffalo express rolled into the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, Roundsman O'Grady arrested a man who gave his name as Don Morrison and his address as the Hotel Majestic, Chicago. The complainant was a stylishly dressed woman, who said she was Miss Mary Kenney of No. 203 East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street.

The woman said that Morrison had passed a note to her in her berth on the sleeper, and thus insulted her and threw her into a highly nervous state.

The policeman who made the arrest was accompanied by a man who gave his name as Monroe Holstein, and who said he was a railroad detective, and also by another man, who said he was Fred G. Smith, a passenger, and would corroborate the charge against Morrison. They went to the East One Hundred and Twentieth street police station, where the woman swore out a complaint. Morrison was locked up.

He was arraigned in the Harlem Police Court and held in $500 bail, which he later gave. A man named Stearn was said to be the bondsman. Morrison, after getting out, disappeared.

The note which caused all the trouble was written on a telegraph blank, and, according to Morrison, who admitted writing it, but said he thought he knew the woman, was dropped into her berth by a porter.

Morrison said he was in the smoker until after midnight, saw the woman get on the train at Rochester and supposed he knew her.

Miss Kenney was not present in court, but a young man who said he was her brother appeared to press the complaint. He said that his sister was too ill from nervousness to appear. There was a rumor that the brother was connected with the police department, but this could not be verified. The case was set down for Tuesday morning.

Court Dates for King Edward.

LONDON.—King Edward, having returned from his two months' holiday on the Continent and the Mediterranean, the dates have been fixed for the customary two courts. The first is set for June 11, the second for June 24, each to be held in Buckingham palace, of course.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, May 17.—Occasional breaks in the stock market last week have seemed to require more careful explanations than previously. This suggests the advisability of examining the situation from the bear point of view. All the world is familiar with the arguments for higher prices, but it must not be forgotten that there is also something to say for the other side of the case.

$ $ $

One obstacle to a decline in the market recently has been that so many clever operators were absolutely sure the psychological moment had come to sell stocks. They sold prematurely and their accumulated short sales furnished the mainspring for a continued advance. In the last ten days the market has looked as though it might be profitable to sell again in an attempt to find the top.

Perhaps the strongest argument of the bear side is the fact that the leading railroad stocks no longer present gilt-edged bargains. Union Pacific can easily be figured worth more than 200, but at 190, around which figure it has hung recently, it is within a reasonable distance of a fair price. South Pacific, at 123, is cheap, but it has come up from far below par. Steel at 58 is $17 a share higher than in January. That means an appreciation of more than $85,000,000 in the price of the capital stock, or the equivalent of the entire net earnings of last year.

$ $ $

The arguments for higher prices have been good, but a liberal money value has been placed upon them in Wall Street.

$ $ $

The government report on Winter wheat was a justification for the high prices that have prevailed in Chicago. But it inspired enormous plantings of Spring wheat and other grains, so that the next crop will undoubtedly be larger than it was a year ago. The public mind seems to be entirely at rest in regard to the crops. There is no longer any doubt that the steel trade is booming. Even copper has been advancing in price, and there is a heavy consumption of the metal. New York agents of producers say that since the first of May they have disposed of nearly 120,000,000 pounds. Money is plentiful. Railroads are able to sell all the bonds they want to issue, and even Erie has a prospect of getting money enough to carry it through. The Steel Trust is producing, at its new plant, at a cost of $5 a ton under the best of its competitors. Europe is taking American high-class securities freely. It is impossible to imagine an argument for higher prices that is not already fully stated and concurred in by all the world.

$ $ $

This universal optimism is causing veteran traders in Wall Street to slip out of their stocks. Every few days the announcement is made that this operator or that one is about to go to Europe and has disposed of a few hundred thousand shares of stock. On being questioned in detail, he admits that he has sold, but says he did it just to lighten his load and without any expectation that the market would follow his lead. He always says that he is retaining more than he sold and nearly all of these gentlemen say that the stocks they are retaining are Steel. There is a world-wide belief that Steel common will sell at 75 this Summer and at par before Christmas.

$ $ $

It is unkind to rouse people from happy dreams, but the history of Wall Street is that when everybody believes a thing is going to happen it never happens. In October and November, 1907, everybody believed that universal bankruptcy was at hand. As a matter of fact half of the Stock Exchange houses of Wall Street would have been unable to meet their obligations had demand been made upon them. So many national banks were in distress that in order to conceal the weak ones every bank suspended specie payment. And yet, in those weeks of universal pessimism, the veteran traders of Wall Street picked up the greatest bargains ever heard of. Union Pacific was purchased at par, Steel at 22, Southern Pacific in the 70's and Standard Oil was to be had several hundred points below its present quotations. Universal bankruptcy did not occur and the great mass of the public stood and looked on while the bargains slipped away.

$ $ $

Now the investing public has stocks that show enormous profits. They are thoroughly convinced that the market will continue to advance throughout the Summer. Very high prices are offered to them for their stocks, and they refuse to sell. One after another of the standard issues has made a new high record without bringing out more than a handful of stocks. It may be that the public is right. The situation certainly does look cheerful, but without expressing any opinion as to which side of the market one should take, it is certainly the duty of a market reviewer to call public attention to the fact thrt the bear party sooner or later will have its day in Wall Street.

KILLED IN GUN FIGHT OVER CARDS

William DeNatto, aged twenty-five, of No. 23 Sheafe street, died at the Relief Hospital early this morning, as a result of a bullet wound in the head, following a battle in the dark and narrow hallway of the house, No. 149 Salem street, last night.

A the hospital is John Christophora, aged thirty, of No. 6 Margaret street, with three deep razor wounds, one across the bridge of his nose, another across one cheek, and the third on the left shoulder. He is charged with assault on De Natto.

Carmino Caristophora, aged thirty-six, and living at No. 6 Margaret street, and his brother Flariano, are held at police headquarters on charge of carrying concealed weapons. The police believe De Natto was fatally injured in a fight caused by a game of cards.

WAR FOR CHEAP GAS ON IN ATTLEBORO

ATTLEBORO, May 17.—The Selectmen have inaugurated war on the Attleboro Gaslight Company for $1 gas. Selectman George A. Sweeney is the principal leader in the contest, and he declares that unless the company accedes to the demand for cheaper gas a determined fight will be made and the matter will be taken before the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners of the State.

In launching the battle Selectman Sweeney declared that the town should not be giving away its valuable franchises without receiving material benefits. He called attention to the fact that the Attleboro Gaslight Company charged $1.50 for gas on credit and $1.30 on a cash basis.

15-YEAR-OLD GIRL SWIMS HULL GUT

A fifteen-year-old girl, Alsie Akyroyd, swam across Hull Gut yesterday and she is said to be the first of her sex ever to have succeeded in crossing the treacherous piece of water. Miss Akyroyd is well known in East Boston as an expert swimmer and last season defeated many of the best local swimmers and won many valuable prizes.

It took her twelve minutes to struggle through Hull Gut in water which registered fifty degrees. She was accompanied by John Bray, the crack swimmer and Jimmie Winston who were in a boat.

According to plans arranged Miss Akyroyd will sail for Europe on June 2 and may attempt some difficult swimming feats on the other side.

FEW CHANGES IN LOCAL LIST

State Street—There was little of interest in the stock market this forenoon. It was very quiet with sentiment hopeful.

Price changes in leading stocks were light, but firm as a rule. North Butte was one exception, and on moderate dealings ran off fractionally to 60⅛. Amalgamated stiffened slightly to 83½.

Swift was fairly active up to 109½. Talk of a stock issue by this company was denied. American Telephone was quiet around 140. East Butte brought 13½@13⅝ and the rights advanced from 60 to 60 cents. Isle Royale was firm at 28¼@28⅝. National Carbon preferred and common shares have been placed on the Boston Stock Exchange. Trading on the local Curb exchange was in Southwestern Development principally. After touching 56 it fell back to 50 cents. Ohio and Helvetia were the other features. The former sagged to 6¾, but recovered to above 7, Helvetia advanced ⅝ to 5 7-16.

STOCKS QUIET BUT STRONG

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Stocks were quiet but strong in the early trading today. A few fractional advances were made in the standard issues, notably Steel, Union Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio. Business was not on a very large scale, the public aparently having no interest in the market.

London was irregular. All news affecting the market was cheerful, but the general disposition in Wall Street seemed to be to sell stocks rather than to buy them. None of the big manipulators seemed willing to get under the market at the moment.

On the curb market the low cost producers in the copper list were strong and fairly active at high record prices. The thoroughly developed properties at Cobalt were also strong. The greatest activity on the curb was in Nevada Consolidated, Cumberland Ely, Giroux, Ray Central, Ray Consolidated, Larose and Kerr Lake.

TWO IN PERIL AS ANCHOR TEARS DECK

In as strange an accident as was ever seen at T wharf, William Sullivan and Carl Massner, two fishermen on the schooner Robert and Arthur, had the closest possible shave from being severely injured. The schooner caught the starboard anchor of the Matiana, which was hanging over the rail forward. The anchor was dragged aboard, and its fluke tore great pieces out of the deckhouse, and almost did the same to Sullivan and Massner, who were caught by the immense mudhook before they knew it, but jumped clear.

CHICAGO BANKER DEAD.

BITTER TAX REFORM FIGHT ON IN SENATE

As a result of the action of the Senate in killing without debate the Merchants' Association's proposed amendment to the constitution doing away with "proportional" taxation and permitting taxation of property by classification, there is every prospect of a bitter clash this week, between the "vested interests" and the reformers.

The House voted overwhelmingly for the amendment, 156 to 30. The corporation lobby killed the measure by the slim margin of 17 to 16.

For more than thirty years publicists, economists and business interests of this city have struggled to free Boston from the throttling effect of unjust, unequal taxation. One little word in the constitution has made all effort futile. This declares that all taxes must be "proportional." They must be levied on all classes of property alike.

Lobby Against Measure.

The Merchants' Association wants the constitution amended so that property may be divided into several great classifications.

The Merchants' Association's Committee on Taxation, of which John C. Cobb is chairman and Professor Charles J. Bullock of Harvard, the leading authority in the United States on taxation, is the most eminent member, has tried to have a bill permitting a referendum on this constitutional amendment eliminating the word "proportional" passed.

The lobbyists of the Boston Elevated and Real Estate Exchange and big domestic corporations have been busy trying to head it off.

Turtle of Pittsfield, who is leading the senators favoring the amendment, managed Friday to secure an agreement that the vote will be reconsidered on Thursday.

The Boston Elevated and Real Estate Exchange crowd declare that they will beat the amendment worse than ever.

Stocks Made Non-Taxable.

There is a very radical element in the Merchants' Association which is eager to declare war to the end on the interests which are defeating tax reform. It is claimed by this radical minority that only the big domestic corporations, of which the Boston Elevated is cited as the largest beneficiary, gain by the present law which makes their shares of stock non-taxable, that the vast majority of stock shares are in corporations organized under the laws of other States and known as "foreign."

These offer no field for the big investors, since all have to be taxed at their full market value. It is plain that no big investor will put his money into foreign stocks or bonds at say 5 per cent. and pay nearly 2 per cent. in taxes. All such are driven to invest in the domestic corporations, non-taxable shares, or in the very choicest of down-town Boston real estate. This is said to be doubling in value every ten years, is on the market at fancy prices and brings good returns.

FEDERAL REPORT LAUDS BAY STATE TAXATION SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, May 17.—The bureau of corporations of the Department of Commerce and Labor to-day made public a report on taxation of corporations in New England. Reports are to be made at intervals on State taxation in all States of manufacturing, mercantile, transportation and transmission corporations in all States.

To-day's report announces that the taxation of individuals is reported to this substantially the same throughout New England. Corporate taxation, on the other hand shows wide diversity both in theory and practice. Individuals are taxed on property. Corporations are taxed on property, or income, or on a combination of both or on capital stocks, either par or market value or occasionally—as in the case of telegraph and telephone companies—on mileage or number of instruments.

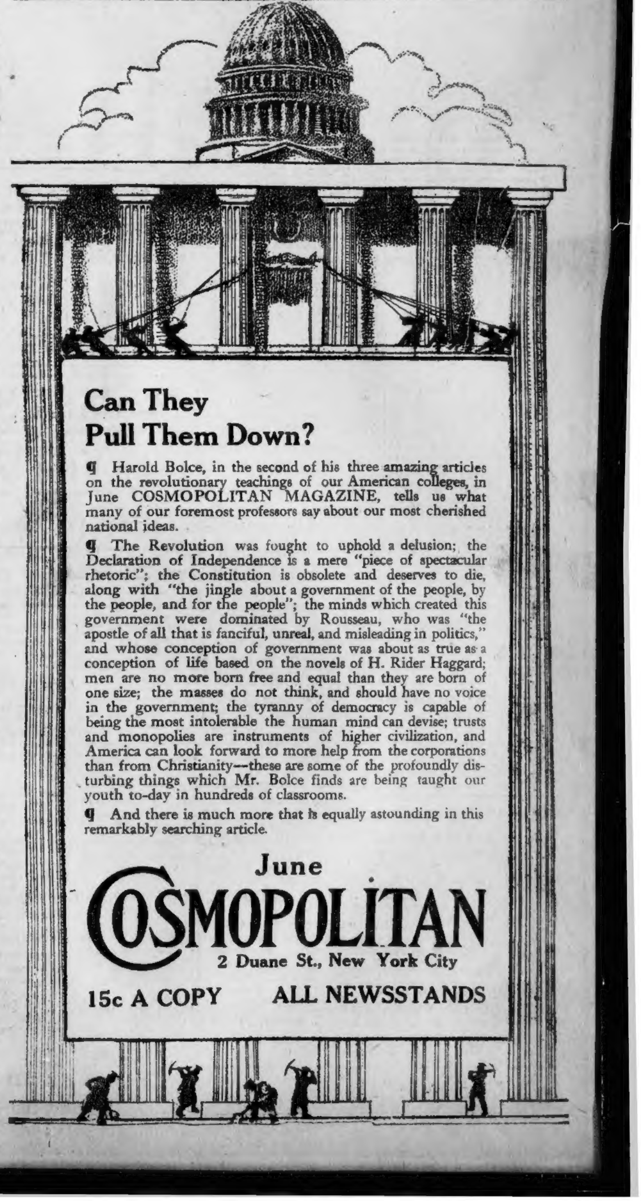
Massachusetts alone succeeds appreciably in efforts to tax specially the manufacturing and mercantile corporations. It receives over $2,000,000 from this source; the other five States very little.

Maine alone of the New England States secures large revenue by chartering corporations—nearly $250,000 annually.

Vermont and Connecticut are the only States which thus pay practically all State expenses. In the other States the towns collect large amounts to turn over to the State.

SUES FOR $15,000 FOR WIFE'S LOVE

Harry L. Door of Randolph to-day filed with the Norfolk County Register of Deeds an attachment of $15,000 against Percy C. Crockett, also of Randolph, in a suit for alienation of his wife's affections. Door also filed a suit for divorce in Plymouth County, naming Crockett in the case.



Can They Pull Them Down?

¶ Harold Bolce, in the second of his three amazing articles on the revolutionary teachings of our American colleges, in June COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, tells us what many of our foremost professors say about our most cherished national ideas.

¶ The Revolution was fought to uphold a delusion; the Declaration of Independence is a mere "piece of spectacular rhetoric"; the Constitution is obsolete and deserves to die, along with "the jingle about a government of the people, by the people, and for the people"; the minds which created this government were dominated by Rousseau, who was "the apostle of all that is fanciful, unreal, and misleading in politics," and whose conception of government was about as true as a conception of life based on the novels of H. Rider Haggard; men are no more born free and equal than they are born of one size; the masses do not think, and should have no voice in the government; the tyranny of democracy is capable of being the most intolerable the human mind can devise; trusts and monopolies are instruments of higher civilization, and America can look forward to more help from the corporations than from Christianity—these are some of the profoundly disturbing things which Mr. Bolce finds are being taught our youth to-day in hundreds of classrooms.

¶ And there is much more that is equally astounding in this remarkably searching article.

THE CARDINALS
IN SECOND GAME

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

RED SOX NOW
OUT TO WIN
FIRST POSITION

SPEED WINS FOR RED SOX, SAY WRITERS

That the Red Sox, or "Speed Boys" as the Boston American League team has been nicknamed out West, are playing the swiftest game in the American League is acknowledged by Cleveland and Detroit newspaper writers.

It is speed, a tight infield and a wonderful outfield combined with good pitching that is keeping down the opponents' tallies, while the ability to whale the ball at the right time and great speed on the bases serve to pile up the runs for Lake's men.

It might be said that the Red Sox take too many chances on the bases. Reports of the games show that they are often nipped in their attempts to corral extra bags, but on the other hand they get more extra bases than they lose, and the fact that they have the speed to go after everything in sight keeps the other fellows on the anxious seat all the time.

It is safe to say that the Red Sox have hardly lost a game this year by being nipped between bases, while more than one game has been chalked up to their credit because of their speed on the bags. The Red Sox are simply playing the style of game that won the pennant for Detroit two season running.

A burnt child dreads the fire. One of Ty Cobb's great stunts is running from first to third on a sacrifice bunt and another of his feats is to always make third when he is on second base and a ball is hit to short or second. But Heiney Wagner, the Red Sox shortstop, "got on" to Cobb's little game last season and pinched him everytime he tried his tricks against the Boston team. So it was that when he reached second at Detroit yesterday and the next man hit a slow one to Wagner, Cobb refused to take a chance at making third and remained anchored at second. Wagner held the ball for a moment, expecting to nab Cobb on the base lines and then threw too late to catch the runner at first. Perhaps, after all, Cobb outguessed Wagner and fooled him into holding the ball so that the runner could reach first.

If the Red Sox win to-day and to-morrow they will move on to Chicago at the head of the American League race and will have accomplished a feat rarely performed. Starting out from Boston on May 4, they split even with New York in a four-game series, then went to Cleveland and cleaned up the series of three games. Now they have won the first from Detroit and Burchell and Chech are yet to pitch. With a fair break of luck the chances are in favor of the "Speed Boys" taking the two remaining games from the Tigers.

PROKOS TO GRAPPLE FRENCH STRANGLER

Manager Farren will start off his big wrestling carnival tonight with one of the most interesting matches of the year. He has made arrangements with Bob Goulette, the French strangler, to come to Boston and meet Prokos, and has offered the French wonder that he will put him on Saturday evening against the winner of the Burns-Willoughby bout. Goulette has never been seen in action in this section of the country but his record is good enough to warrant that he will make Prokos travel some in order to make a showing. He is a marvel of speed, and fully as agile as Bothner. He uses some tactics that remind one very much of Pereill, and while not so ferocious as the Italian he nevertheless manages to get the goat of many an opponent by his methods. The crowd at the Columbia this evening will see some great sport.

Jim Prokos must not be confounded with the John Prokos whose wife committed suicide last week, for Jim has not yet entered the bonds of matrimony. He claims no relationship with the wrestler now in custody. Prokos is in great condition and will put up a good strong battle.

The bout Wednesday night will be between Walter Willoughby and Cyclone Burns, this time to a finish, which means a rather long session as both wrestled last week for an hour without a fall being registered.

WILL WRESTLE FOR TWO MAT TITLES

Henry Gehring of Cleveland is now the middleweight wrestling champion of America and many believe that after next Thursday night Cleveland will be able to claim another wrestling championship.

On that night, in Grays Armory, Otto Suter of Cleveland meets Chas. Conkle of Hamilton, Ont., for the welterweight championship of America, a title which Conkle has held for nearly two years and defended against all comers at that weight. For a time he was also middleweight champion of Canada, but was really too light to wrestle at that limit.

Suter has not lost a match in five years, and as a $500 purse is at stake, as well as the championship title, both men can be depended upon to put up the match of their lives.

MOTOR BOAT REGATTA JULY 5

BURLINGTON, Ia., May 17.—The Launch Club of this city will hold a Mississippi River regatta on July 5 and 6 that in scope and variety will be the largest motor boat race program ever given on the river. There are to be ten important prize races, from one mile to thirty miles, and races for all kinds of river craft from a twenty-footer to a full cabin cruiser.

Entries have been received from every important point on the Mississippi between Memphis and St. Paul, as well as from points on the Ohio, Illinois, Cumberland and Missouri Rivers. Burlington will expend $10,000 in the entertainment of her guests.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

WHITE SOX STARS GO TO WASHINGTON

CHICAGO, May 17.—President Comiskey has started his May house cleaning in rugged fashion, railroading Jiggs Donohue, Nick Altrock and Charles C. Cravath to Washington in exchange for "Big" Bill Burns, the left-handed mainstay of the Senators' box staff.

Burns was slated to part company with his mates in St. Louis last night, and will probably don the immaculate white in time for practice to-day on the South Side. Altrock, Donohue and Cravath will take a train for Cleveland to-night to await the arrival of the Senators, where they open a series on Wednesday.

THE BATTER.

Hooroo! Ain't he the sight to hold your peeps?
You'd never think, to see him sparring with the stick,
A beaut like him could ever shunt a lick.
But Birdie, some of them give me the weeps.
Aw, rotten! Pass that slumpire to the cheaps!
Was that a strike? Oh, say, he makes me sick.
Wow, Birdie, look at that! He's swiped the trick!
Home run for ——, say, it's foul. All right, he keeps
On sparring. Birdie, he's the stuff that makes
It worth the coming here to see a game.
There goes another foul. It's him that takes
The chicken pie, but he will get there all the same.
Say, watch him twirl the timber for a clout!
Oh, Birdie, peck me hard! The mutt's struck out.

COMMY'S GREAT INTERVIEW

One of the souvenirs the Sox brought back from California is a "full-page interview"—so it is headed—in a San Francisco newspaper, with Charley Comiskey. As Commy rarely says more than fifty words a week for publication, the interview is, indeed, a great curiosity—until it has been read.

A young woman wrote the interview, which goes something like this:

"How did you happen to go into baseball, Mr. Comiskey?"

Commy: "Let's see, how was it, George?"

And then follows a half-column of Comiskey's early history succinctly given by George Rice, a Chicago newspaper man, who travels with the Sox.

PICKS ROTH AS TOP CATCHER IN BIG LEAGUES

There are few better judges of ball players in the baseball world than Manager Charles Carr of Indianapolis, who thinks Frank Roth is the best backstop the American Association has sent to the big leagues in a long time. Carr believes "Paddy" Livingston, who did most of the receiving for the Browns in their pennant fight a year ago, is a great catcher, but he hands a much larger bouquet to Roth.

Manager Carr said: "I believe Frank Roth, who was with Milwaukee last year, is the best backstop this league has sent to the majors in a long time. There are other good catchers who have been turned out, including Livingston, but Roth is the best of them all.

"The reason I consider Roth so valuable is because he is always willing to take a chance of any kind. He has the nerve to be a great catcher. He never fails to take advantage of a chance to peg a man out at any sack, and when playing with a good hard working club he will retire many of them before they get around. Roth is a great man to work with pitchers, and he hits. Roth will take a chance in pulling off plays where other catchers will refuse those chances. Those chances must be taken in winning baseball games. We lost games last year because Livingston would not take enough chances. The fans do not know it, but it is true nevertheless. If Roth had been behind the bat we would have won those games. I do not mean to say, however, that Livingston is not a great catcher. He will be a good man for Philadelphia."

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR ROWDY PLAYERS

NEW YORK, May 17.—Acting President Heydler of the National League has put his foot down on rowdy ball playing. He insists that the rules governing the game be enforced and after a long session with the league umpires instructed them that rowdyism will not be countenanced, and put it up to them to enforce the laws.

Heydler was at the National League headquarters in the St. James Building for more than two hours going over the rules with his referees and telling them to be strict in their enforcement of proper deportment on the field by the players. The umpires were instructed to report immediately any infractions of the code. At the end of the meeting the acting president made this statement:

"The personnel of the National League clubs has reached a high standard, gratifying alike to the baseball public and the club owners of this organization, and it is not our intention to allow a few rowdily inclined players to negative the good results achieved."

MEXICANS WANT JEFF-JOHNSON BOUT

MEXICO CITY, May 17.—Americans in this city are organizing to boom the boxing game in Mexico and they hope to open it up by presenting the bout between Johnson and Jeffries if these two giants are ever matched.

The dispute into which the game has fallen in the United States has inspired the fight fans here to sound out the Mexican authorities as to what their attitude would be and it is said they have received intimations that the authorities would offer no interference.

Harry Greenway and E. T. Shipman have been showing the pictures of the Johnson-Burns fight and these have made such a great hit that the showmen are of the opinion that the real thing would make even a greater hit.

SKEETS MARTIN TO RIDE SIR MARTIN

"Skeets" Martin, the American jockey, now riding in England, will have the mount of Sir Martin, the colt that Louis Winans bought from John E. Madden last year for $70,000, in the Epsom Derby. Martin rode Sir Martin in his recent victory in England.

"Sir Martin will win the English Derby if he is in perfect physical condition," said Madden. "He is a fast horse of great courage. In addition to this he is one of the truest running horses I ever owned. You may always depend upon him to do his best."

TWO CRANCH A. A. TEAMS.

Manager Bert Dickie of the Cranch A. A. is anxious to inform amateur managers that there are two Cranch A. A. teams, and his is the original club of that name. The Cranch A. A. which was defeated Saturday was not the team managed by Bert Dickie.

BACK TO THE MINORS.

NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—"Chick" Fraser, the veteran spit ball pitcher of the Chicago National League Club, has been purchased in a deal between President Murphy of the Cubs and Manager Frank of the Pelicans. The local manager announces the release of Pitcher Bartley to Atlanta.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

McAleese, who gets his chance to play with the Browns through the injury to Stone, is making good. Oddly enough, both McAleer and McAleese are on the same team, and both live in Youngstown, Ohio.

Oakes of the Cincinnati Reds was the first player in either big league to have 100 times at bat on the season.

The Cubs are wearing the faded and soiled uniforms of last season, evidently considering them to be lucky.

Pessimistic rooters ought not to attend ball games. The man who, after a defeat, wails out "We won't get a single game from those Cubs," is a regular wet blanket.

The members of the "Broken Idol" company were guests of the Cleveland Club, and occupied the elevated seats on the left side of the grandstand during the last Boston-Cleveland game. And it was a "Broken Idol" that the fans witnessed when Young was beaten so badly.

If the Bostons play as fast in the Detroit series as they did in Cleveland there will be no question what will happen to the Tigers.

Toronto will be giving the Chicago White Sox a close battle for the premier claim to the title of "Hitless Wonders," if their present gait is kept up. They won two games from Jersey City, making only six hits in both, while their opponents collected a total of fifteen in the two.

Can Buffalo hit? The Bison City papers say it ought be able to, the players say they can and the official scores don't show it. What's the answer?

Raftery, who played right field for the Cleveland team in their series against the Sox, is out with a challenge to run Tyrus Cobb a 100-yard dash. Raftery and Cobb were in the same league for two years, and Raftery says he will gamble a month's salary that he can outrun Tyrus.

Pat Donahue, the Red Sox backstop, looks so much like his brother "Jiggs" on the White Sox that the two are constantly mistaken for each other.

Umpire Tom Connolly is one of the few announcers who do the job right. He removes his cap, opens his mouth, throws his head back and says: "Ladies and gentlemen, the batteries for to-day are as follows: To wit, i. e., viz." By that time everybody is listening and can cop the names as they fall forth in clarion accents.

"PETE" BURG, THE MIDGET SHORTSTOP OF LYNN BALL TEAM

"Pete" Burg, Lynn's pigmy shortstop, is the smallest baseball player working in organized ball in the country. He was born in Chicago twenty-six years ago. He stands five feet two inches and weighs 140 pounds.

His work with the Lynn club so far this season has put him prominently in the limelight and he bids fair now to be the sensation of the New England League this season.

He is very fast on his feet, has a fine whip and is coming strong with the bat.

Burg was drafted by the Lynn club from Kewanee, Ill., in the Central Association League, a class C outfit. There he was the leading shortstop, playing 125 games, hitting for .287 and fielding for .931. He looked good and Manager Hamilton, of the Lynn club, jumped at the chance to get him.

Pete says he the smallest of his family and that both his father and mother and his two brothers are better than medium height. From a kid up he's been playing ball with grown up men and previous to his getting into organized baseball four years ago he was the idol of the sand-heaps in the Windy City.

For several years he played independent baseball in Chicago. It was from one of these teams that he was picked up by the Central League.

GYMNASTIC DISPLAY.

The third annual gymnastic exhibition and dance of the Holy Trinity Athletic Association will be given Wednesday night in Casino Hall, No. 132 Shawmut avenue, for the benefit of the Holy Trinity Church.

The exhibition will begin at 8 p. m. Dancing will follow.

The officers of the association are: Martin A. Lorenzo, president; Charles H. Huerth, vice-president; Fred A. Freier, secretary, and George A. Stokinger, treasurer.

MONTE CROSS OUT, BECKLEY TAKES PLACE

Jake Beckley, veteran first baseman, will to-day succeed Monte Cross, premier short stop, as manager of Kansas City. Cross will be unconditionally released. He has been drawing a salary of $700 a month.

Speaking of the change in the team, President Tebeau said:

"I have decided that Monte Cross is lacking in managerial experience. The fans want a change and I am going to give them the man they want—Jake Beckley. I believe the fans will root for the team with 'Fighting Jake' in charge of the club.

"As a player, Cross is one of the best in the league. I like Cross personally and hate to make the change, but I have tried him now for more than a year and at the expense of the fans. It is a certainty that the club cannot lose any more games with him out of it."

Monte Cross has been in charge of the team for more than a year. The team finished in seventh place a year ago and Cross came back this year stating that he had learned a great deal in his first year as manager of the club and believed he could give Kansas City fans a winner this season. The team has been playing now for a month and it looks as though it is in the same old rut that it was in a year ago at this time. It is now in sixth place and a little better fighting spirit will put it much higher. The material is with the club if Beckley can get the work out of the material.

Jake Beckley has been playing league baseball for more than twenty years. There is not a man in the business who knows the game better than he does and he knows how to put runs over the platter.

PUTS BAN ON ROWDY BALL

NEW YORK, May 17.—The suppression of rowdyism on the field and a strict enforcement of rules throughout the season, were two points brought out with emphasis by Acting President John Heydler of the National League, at a conference with the eight umpires of his organization, held in New York.

It was decided at the meeting to follow the action taken by the American League last year, barring a player from the field for the entire day in the event of his being ordered from the first game of a double-header.

Third Baseman Edgar Lenox of Brooklyn, and William Gleason of Philadelphia, who were indefinitely suspended last Tuesday for participating in a row on the Brooklyn grounds, were reinstated. They will be allowed to resume play to-day.

In view of the low level of some players's benches, notably at New York and at Philadelphia, it was decided to promulgate a new rule covering cases where a thrown ball goes in such depressions. To offset the delay in recovering such a ball, only two bases will be allowed, a regulation heretofore enforced in the ground rules in the case of low grandstands as at Boston.

BILLY PAPKE WANTS MATCH IN THE EAST

NEW YORK, May 17.—Ed Papke, brother and manager of Billy, has written to Billy Gibson asking for a match here in New York. Papke claims the middleweight championship, now that Ketchell has gone out of his class meeting heavyweights, but Papke is most desirous of taking Ketchell on in a ten-round bout in the East.

MIDDIES MAKE BIG BET.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 17.—A check for $3,000 has been received from the Army cadets as their bet on the West Point team in the annual baseball game with the midshipmen, which will be played at West Point May 29. By the customary pool among the members of the brigade of midshipmen, the amount is said to have been a little over-subscribed and the wager was covered at once.

LANGFORD TO BE MATCHED WITH PAPKE

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—If the plans of Promoter James Coffroth are fulfilled, the fight fans in San Francisco will see a Papke-Langford fight on July 5, which is the official date this year of the national holiday.

The owner of the Mission-street arena, has already started things going by offering Papke $10,000 for his share and to-day he will cable to Joe Woodman, manager of Langford in London, that the Boston negro can get $5,000 if he will meet the Kewanee fighter in the Mission-street arena.

Papke made no comment of Coffroth's offer. He did not declare himself and is probably waiting to find out how the offer strikes Langford before he says anything.

Mike Twin Sullivan, who is matched to fight Kyle Whitney before the Mission club this month, arrived here yesterday and immediately betook himself to San Rafael, where he will go into training to-day, using Billy Shannon's gym. The twin is accompanied by his brother Jack "Twin," who will supervise his conditioning.

The side bet offered by Dawson, manager of Whitney, of $1,000, was promptly covered by the Twins. It is understood that the Sullivans will each stand half of the loss if Mike is licked.

KETCHEL WILL HOLD TITLE

NEW YORK, May 17.—When Stanley Ketchel, the present holder of the middleweight title, was informed that Papke had won in a little over one minute of fighting, he was a bit surprised at first, and then said: "It was just like him to win like that, and now that the first surprise is over, I really thought he'd win that way, if at all. He's a bear if he cops you one in the first round. He got me the same way, the first time that I ever lost.

"Kelly should have been prepared for that rush. It wasn't as though he was fighting him for the first time. He should have been on the lookout. It's the best thing the Thunderbolt does, you know.

"Will I make the weight again and fight him? Yes. But they must show me the money. No more of the $6,000 thing to make it all right, but it must be for money. I think I can still take care of that honor, no matter what Mr. Papke thinks."

LARGEST CONTRACT KNOWN

News of the largest contract for automobiles ever made in the history of the industry came out when R. E. Olds, president of the Reo Motor Car Company, announced the details of an agreement for the selling of Reo cars just closed with R. M. Owen & Co. The deal involves the marketing of $50,000,000 worth of automobiles.

Since the organization of the Reo Motor Car Company in 1904, R. W. Owen & Co. have sold their product under conditions that have been very satisfactory to all concerned. Under the new contract, the same relation continues between R. M. Owen & Co. and the manufacturers of the Reo car that has heretofore existed.

The Iroquois A. C. of Lynn want games with fast teams. A. S. Hutchinson, Peabody, Mass.

The Longwoods would like to hear from seventeen-year-old teams in the State. William H. Connolly, No. 16 State street.

The Hamiltons of Lynn want games with the Portland, Old Orchard, Newburyport, Ipswich, Salem and Wakefield teams. J. T. Doran, 59 Whittie st., Lynn.

The Pacific A. C. would like to arrange games with fifteen-year-old teams away from home. Joseph Geden, No. 410 Washington street, Boston.

The Warren A. C. wants games with seventeen or eighteen-year-old teams. Joseph Joyce, No. 151 Broadway, Everett.

The Ardmore A. C. would like to hear from thirteen-year-old teams; games away from home preferred. J. Halligan, No. 902 Fourth street, South Boston.

The Royal A. C. would like to arrange games with fifteen-year-old teams in or around Boston; give or take half expenses for ten men. J. H. O'Neill, No. 119 Franklin street, Allston.

The Crescents of Everett want games with sixteen or seventeen-year-old teams; will give or take half expenses. J. Nicholls, No. 31 Chatham road, Everett.

The Superiors of Dorchester would like to arrange games with the strongest thirteen-year-old uniformed teams around Boston. D. Calahan, No. 59 Willow street, Dorchester.

The Brookline Athletics want games away from home with teams giving fair guarantees. J. Rathgib, No. 21 Edge Hill street, Roxbury.

The Father Mathew T. A. S. of Haverhill desire games with semi-professional teams. A. Meehan, F. M. T. A. S., Merrimack street, Haverhill.

The Healey-Seaver Company team would like to arrange games with eighteen or nineteen-year-old teams for Saturdays and holidays; give or take half expenses for ten men. A. S. Simpson, No. 11 West Seventh street, South Boston.

The Holy Trinity would like to arrange games with twelve or thirteen-year-old uniformed teams. P. Spang, No. 78 Bloomfield street, Dorchester.

The Longwood A. C. is out to meet all sixteen or seventeen-year-old teams. J. Wiseman, No. 165 Devonshire street.

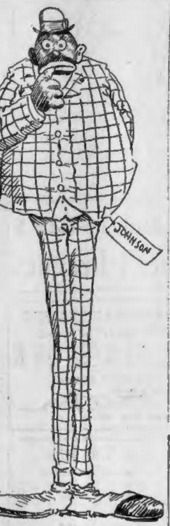
BOUTS AT FANEUIL A. A.

Another boxing entertainment has been announced by Joe McCarthy of the Faneuil Hall A. C. Next Friday night Jimmy McCarthy, the Chicago boxer, who is at present residing in South Boston, will meet Arthur Cole of Biddeford in the main bout, and there will be either two or three preliminaries.

ARTHA' PONDERS ON WHAT'LL COME OFF WEDNESDAY



O'BRIEN MAY CLINCH TITLE

By TAD.

NEW YORK, May 17.—Mr. Jawn O'Brien, the pink tea spiller of the unconscious city, will have the chance of his life Wednesday night in his home town when he meets Johnson in a six-round muss.

Jack may be champion of the world after the go. He may be the most bumped-up gentleman that we have seen in years. Should he cop Mr. Johnson on the feeder hard enough to send that gentleman to the carpet for a certain length of time Jawn will be there with laurel wreaths. Of course, few expect such an ending, but there's a chance. Fights are like ball games—you can't tell until the ninth inning.

O'Brien is without doubt the cleverest big white man in the ring to-day. He is meeting the cleverest black man. The distance is to his liking. He knows just how he can go for six rounds. He was brought up on that game.

The betting favors Johnson, but you can bet a hat or two that there will be many a bet placed on the Quaker gentleman.

Johnson will enter the ring Wednesday night for the first time since he trimmed the quince of all champions down in Australia, and the sports are anxious to see just how good the big fellow is.

There will be special trains leaving New York on the night of the fight. The main bunch will leave Cortlandt street from this side at 7 o'clock and John McGuigan of the National Club will have sightseeing autos meet the crowd at the station to drive them to the club house. It will be some fight. Six rounds isn't a long time, but they can crowd a lot into that distance.

JACK ATKIN GETS TOP WEIGHT AT 135

Jack Atkin, the game Sain colt, has been allotted top weight of 135 pounds in the Crotona Handicap, a six-furlong dash, which will be run at Belmont Park tomorrow. The following is a list of starters and weights:

WINNER WILL GET CHANCE TO MEET GARDNER

Just how good Jimmy Clabby, the champion welterweight of the middle West, is will be decided at the Armory A. A. tomorrow night, when he measures his wallops and ring generalship with Tommy Quill in twelve sessions.

That feat of getting a twenty-round draw with Jimmy Gardner is pretty good dope that Clabby is the real thing, and he has certainly made a fine impression on all those who have seen him in action. Even Quill hesitated at first in taking on such formidable looking game as Clabby, but the Brockton boy was getting a bit restless for want of some ring work, and accepted the chance, as there is no one at the weight better fitted in this section to give Clabby a battle.

There is a big object for either lad to win, as the decision getter will be matched with Jimmy Gardner, and thought of that will cause both to use up all the speed that is in them to turn the award in their direction.

What promises to be the interesting feature of the bout is the hitting powers of each lad. Clabby is the kind who tries to win by the short route and has a bunch of K. O.'s in his record, and Quill never has to be coaxed into making the milling fast from start to finish.

The two eight-round bouts have some good talent, with Billy Shevlin opposed to Tommy Fury of North Attleboro and Billy Rolfe striding with Young Jack Johnson, the peer of the colored boys around here.

JEFF TO TRAIN WITH CORBETT

CHICAGO, May 17.—James J. Jeffries has received a letter from James J. Corbett, in which Corbett stated that he would be in New York next week and would be glad to help the undefeated champion in his training. Jeff said he would accept the offer and box Corbett every afternoon next week.

"I consider Corbett the most clever boxer in the history of pugilism and by boxing with him I can easily tell whether I am going to be as quick and active as I used to be," said Jeff. "I understand he knows considerable about Johnson's style of fighting and I am sure I will learn a lot from him about the negro. Corbett also wants me to do some road work with him, which fits into my plans nicely."

For the benefit of those who do not believe that he is taking weight off gradually, the champion will have a photograph taken on the scales to-day. He invites any recognized critic to test the scales and watch the weighing process, and predicts that he will be considerably under the 240-pound mark.

Jeff weighed himself in street clothes to-day and tipped the beam at 241 pounds. He asserts he could have reduced more, but is afraid to take weight off too fast. He is relying upon the baths at Carlsbad to take off most of it.

TO OPEN COLUMBIA FIELD

NEW YORK, May 17.—Columbia and Syracuse will play a Commencement Day baseball game on Columbia's new field on the afternoon of June [illegible]. The dedication of the field by the donors, the classes of '99 and '84 nines, will take place just before the game.

YACHTING NOTES.

Walter Burgess reports the Boston Yacht Club having a membership of 702, which includes six honorary members.

The club house at Hull will be in commission on Saturday, June 5, which is good news for the Boston Yacht members. Beginning early, too, there will be one or more entertainments.

Work has begun on the changes and improvements at the Rowe's wharf house. There will be even more activity at the house this year than before.

The sloop yacht Seneca has been sold by H. Wilmer and Addison G. Hanan to Eric C. Moore of the Rochester Yacht Club, and the sloop that caused so much trouble recently when the Canadians were trying to negotiate a race for the Canada cup will again be a thorn in their side in all regattas.

The Binnacle has made its second appearance and is a readable publication for the members of the Boston Yacht Club. Editor Joaquin Souther has certainly made a hit, as well as his corps of assistant editors.

Members of the City Point station are asking for a few band concerts during the season, with dancing. Some would also like electric lights in the lockers in place of oil lamps that have been in use.

Two more entries have been received for the Bermuda power boat race, and, like the three before entered are new boats. Richmond Lovering and William Cooper Proctor, both of Cincinnati, are the owners. The other entries were from J. G. N. Whittaker of Philadelphia, Francis G. Rogers of Camden, N. J., and Commodore Siegel of the Baltimore Yacht Club.

The Hollis Burgess Yachting Agency of this city has sold the 40-foot sloop yacht America, owned by C. W. Sherburne of Boston, to Richard von Foregger of New York. He has re-named her Adyta II.

Frederick L. Gay has offered a cup to be sailed for by the old 21-foot knockabouts. Competition will be under the old rules of this class. Percentage will be figured on the races sailed at Marblehead only.

FAMOUS SHOW MARE.

BOSTON SOCIETY
By Elizabeth Elliott

With society so continually on the wing there is little diversion for the small number of fashionables left in town save the dining of departing friends and the preparations for June bridals. Mrs. William H. Sands of Commonwealth avenue, with Miss Gertrude Sands, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dunlay, are sailing for Europe early this week to be gone the greater part of the Summer. Mrs. Edgar Harding of Beacon street, with her young son, Marston Harding, will shortly sail for Europe to spend the Summer motoring on the continent. Last year Mrs. Harding spent the Summer at Woods Hole.

* * *

Mrs. George von L. Meyer and her daughters, after a few days' visit in New York, sailed from there Saturday for Europe. They will spend the greater part of the short visit in Italy and Berlin. They will make only a short visit in Rome, as they plan to spend the midsummer at the Hamilton home.

* * *

Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, with her attractive daughter Helen and her most intimate girl chum, Katherine Warren, who went abroad in the Autumn shortly after the tragic death of the son of the house, Montgomery Sears, Jr., are planning to sail for home the second day of June, to be on hand for the wedding on June 11 of Miss Warren's brother, Samuel Warren, Jr., and Miss Helen Thomas, which is to take place at the Thomas villa at Pride's Crossing.

* * *

Most interesting among the late bridal couples to return from their honeymoon are Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge, who have been, since their marriage a couple of weeks ago, at the J. Randolph Coolidge cottage at Smith's Point. Mrs. Coolidge before her marriage was Miss Helen Stevens.

* * *

Society has already heard the call of the beautiful North Shore, as is evident in the large number of prominent folk who are opening up their cottages there. I learned to-day that Mrs. Edmund J. Shattuck of Norwood is at the cottage at Coolidge's Point occupied for the past few seasons by Baron Rosen, the Russian Ambassador. With her are the Misses Shattuck. The Costello C. Converses of Malden have leased the Shaw cottage at Magnolia.

Others who have left town are Mrs. E. A. Whipple and son, who are at West Manchester; the Percival Lombards, who have the Winch cottage on Blossom lane, near Singing Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen V. R. Crosby, who have just opened their pretty cottage at West Manchester; the Charles T. Dukelows of Brookline, who are at the Emerson cottage, Magnolia; Mrs. H. M. Curry and family of Pittsburg, who have a new cottage at Magnolia; Mrs. Martha S. Jones of this city, who has leased the Covel cottage at Magnolia, and Mrs. H. M. St. Clair, who has the James Lee cottage at Magnolia.

I notice that the patronesses for the Cafe Chantant to be given in Copley Hall on Thursday by the Professional Women's Club for its club house fund, are hard at work on the plans for the affair. These patronesses are Mrs. J. Arthur Beebe, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Mrs. David P. Kimball, Mrs. Edgar Champlin, Mrs. W. Taggart Piper, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. Lucius Manlius Sargent, Mrs. W. A. Bancroft, Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman, Mrs. Carl Dreyfus, Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, Miss Ellen F. Mason, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Mrs. F. R. Sears, Miss Clara Endicott Sears and Mrs. I. Tuckerman Burr. Mrs. Helen M. Winslow is chairman of the committee. I understand that "The Real Thing," a play by John Kendrick Bangs, which is to be presented, is a rare treat.

* * *

The patronesses for the annual assembly of the Sinfonia Fraternity, Alpha Chapter, of the New England Conservatory of Music, at Howe Hall, to-morrow evening, are Mrs. Eben D. Jordan, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. Ralph L. Flanders, Mrs. Robert S. Russell, Mrs. George S. Winslow, Mrs. William B. Tyler, Mrs. Thatcher Loring, Mrs. Albert Thorndike, Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, Mrs. W. A. L. Bazeley.

* * *

The tea of the literary and entertainment committee of the Woman's Charity Club at the Vendome, a week from the coming Thursday, will undoubtedly prove to be a most pleasing affair. The Misses Beatey will assist in the entertainment, and members of the Melrose Highland's Woman's Club will present that invigorating farce, "The Kleptomaniacs."

* * *

Another of the debutantes of last season has set the date for her marriage. This time it is that exceptionally clever and versatile girl, Barbara Hinckley, who has set June 9 for her marriage to Edward Sohier Welch, son of Francis C. Welch. Indications are that the affair will be a brilliant event.

* * *

The J. Arthur Brooks left town to-day for New York, where they sail tomorrow on a two months' trip abroad. They will be back in time to enjoy the delightful autumnal months at their pretty Summer home at their North Shore cottage.

* * *

Philip French and Pliny Howell, 2d, are ushers at the wedding in New York to-day of Josephine Ogden and Pierpont Davis at the Church of the Incarnation. I understand that quite a number of Boston guests are also over to the brilliant event.

* * *

Miss Elizabeth Loring, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton D. Loring of No. 120 Marlboro street, and Thomas Weston, Jr., of Newton, are to be married Saturday afternoon.

* * *

A very pretty wedding is scheduled in Cincinnati on June 15, when Dr. Chandler Robbins of Beacon street takes as his bride Miss Laura Foster of that city. The ushers will be Dr. Roger Irving Lee and Dr. Wyman Whittemore.

* * *

Professor Alexander Aggasiz is to leave town on Wednesday and spend the coming two months at his villa at Castle Hill, Newport.

* * *

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Nagel will spend the Summer at Marion. They have leased the Wharton residence in K street, west of Connecticut avenue, Washington, as their town home.

* * *

Late Boston arrivals in Newport are Miss N. L. Greenleaf, who has rented the Everett cottage; Mrs. Charles Whitney, W. S. Hills, Worcester Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robb and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Emmons.

The Things We Quarrel About

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MOST of us are so constituted that it is the little annoyances of life that disturb us, rather than the big ones. We can love a person in spite of one big fault, but our love will not survive numerous little irritating faults.

A man may steal, lie, forge and even worse, and his wife still love him; but if he nags or finds fault or is stingy, or even sniffs in a constant, annoying manner, it kills her love.

I remember a bride once telling me she thought she would go crazy if her husband did not stop clearing his throat at the breakfast table.

"It seems so silly of me," she confessed, "but that little cough of his is driving me to distraction. I even begin to feel that I do not love him as much as I thought I did. It is on my nerves, I suppose."

And that is just what the little faults do—they get on our nerves. We ought to be big enough to rise superior to such trivialities, but we are not; that's the truth of it.

Little Things Magnified

Of course, they don't regard them as trifles; they regard them as the biggest, most important causes on earth, and they think the whole world should stand still because of a letter unanswered for twenty-four hours, or because the girl has spoken civilly to some other man, or the man has asked some other girl to dance.

But, my dear young people, the world—though it lends a kindly eye and ear to your romance—is not going to put itself out one least little bit on your account.

You must take care of your own quarrels, and the best way to avoid them is not to make them in the first place.

I suppose you shrug your shoulders at this and say, "Pretty advice from one who is supposed to help us out of our troubles."

Well, I am always ready and glad to help in any way that I can, but nevertheless it would be better if you did not have the troubles, wouldn't it?

You have been brought up in different surroundings, with different opinions and ideas, so, naturally, you cannot always agree, but you can be patient and tolerant, can't you?

If you quarrel while you are engaged you will be sure to do so after marriage.

Remember that before marriage both man and girl are on their best behavior, and that is because they are not quite sure of each other.

After Marriage Faults Come Out

After marriage they are sure, though they should not be, and so they relax and display faults and characteristics that heretofore have been carefully hidden.

Most of the virtues are known before marriage and few of the faults. In reality, it should be just the other way.

The time of engagement is short, but marriage, as a rule, is lifelong, and for that reason patience and forbearance are necessary to its happiness.

The small irritations that at first seem almost unendurable must be lived down.

If you can only manage to keep your temper and control your tongue, you will find that after a time the irritation lessens, and you can tolerate the annoying qualities, even though you may not like them any better.

There is no use in marrying at all unless you can make up your mind to be patient with each other's faults; for no one is free from certain little trying characteristics.

For the sake of the many joys that your love brings you you must bear with the small shadows and cheerfully resign yourself to making the best of them.

Advice to the Lovelorn

GET A JOB FIRST

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am engaged to a young man and have been keeping steady company with him for the past three years. For two months he has not been working and mother thinks it is about high time that I get married. She does not seem to realize, if we get married while he is not working, how bad it would be for us both.

HEART-BROKEN CARRIE.

DO not think of marrying until the young man finds a position. Three years is a long engagement and I think he should make a strong effort to find work. You had better tell him what your mother says and that you will not marry until he is in a position to support you. That may stir him up.

THE BEST MAN WINS.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man twenty-one years old, and dearly love a girl of nineteen, who likes me better than she does any one else except a friend of mine. The latter is earning $30 a week, while I am earning only $16. He can provide a better home for her than I can. He has told me that he will propose to the girl shortly. Do you think I should let him propose first or not? I think that the girl will be equally happy with him, but I can never be happy without her.

E. O'B.

I SEE no reason why you should not both try your luck. It may be that she likes you better than she does him, and if so you will be the one to win her heart. If, on the other hand, she likes your friend the best, he will be the lucky man. Whichever man wins, the only honorable course for the other man to follow will be to accept defeat in a good spirit and leave the field to the successful suitor.

DOES NOT IMPROVE LOOKS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am going with a young lady, and have taken her out on several occasions, and am beginning to think a great deal of her, and know that she has already mentioned it, but there is one fault I find with her; she has a beautiful head of hair, but it is bleached. I do not think it is right in any girl to do that, without an excuse, but am in love so deeply with the young lady I think that I could overlook that if she could give me an excuse.

OSCAR T.

IF she has beautiful hair it is a great pity that she should spoil it by artificial means. No one is deceived by such methods; it is always most apparent that the hair is not natural, and it is never becoming. Nature sees to it that the hair and coloring which best match go together, and art cannot improve on it. Tell her what you think about it, and perhaps she will take your advice.

DO NOTHING HASTILY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl and have been keeping company with a young man for about six months. I am deeply in love with this man and always had the impression that he loved me. Until a few days ago I noticed he had been paying attention to a girl friend of mine. He made her a present of a silk handkerchief, which she showed to me. She, knowing I had been going with him, offered me the handkerchief, but I refused to take it. Now, Miss Fairfax, can you advise me what to do?

BROKEN-HEARTED.

DO nothing hastily, but after a time if you are sure that he has turned his attentions to your girl friend just quietly stop going with him. Do nothing to make him think you are jealous.

NOT NECESSARY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you kindly inform me on the folowing?

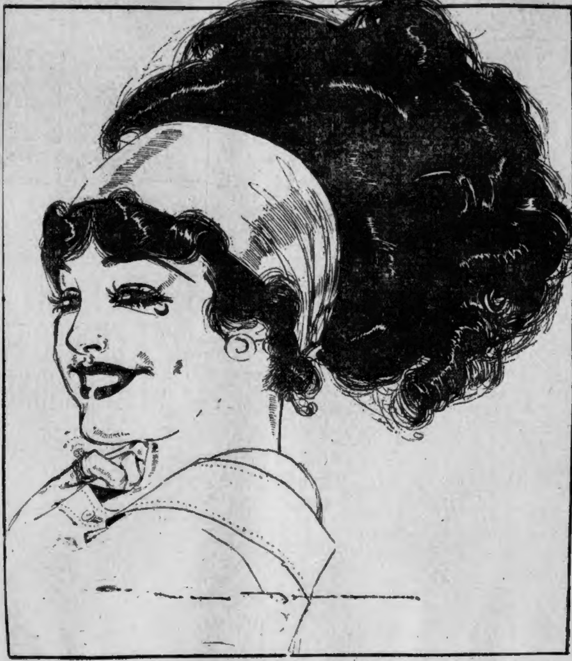
I am a cashier in a wholesale house, and very often some of my family will stop in to see me—for instance, my mother—and perchance stay a half hour, and if it should be a holiday, witness the parade from our windows. Now, what I would like to know is, does etiquette demand that I should introduce the salesmen, etc., or is it not necessary in business?

VIRGINIA.

IT is not necessary to introduce your family to your fellow clerks, but if you wish to there is no harm in your doing so. If I were you I would not encourage your family or friends to call on you during business hours. Your time belongs to your employer and should not be wasted.

If Paris Lived To-day—By Nell Brinkley

Would He Give the Apple "For the Fairest" to This Generous, Sweet-Tempered Chatterbox?



"Her nose is a crooked, turn-up nose, sassy and senseless—and she has a dimple."

PARIS slumped down at the mossed-over roots of the pine that gazes out at the sea from the tiptop of the steep little slope, and rumpled up his ribbon fillet behind in the fashion that a Billy does his hat. And so he babbled, chewing early grass:

"I saw her on the beach to-day. So early—yes, I did! Coming out of that shivering water, loping along lightly on her black silk feet, dripping and giggling.

"We hadn't her kind when I piped and herded on the hills near Troy. They were straight-nosed, deep-throated, jawless. But this kind—you have it all over!

"And I wonder that she can be beautiful—for her nose doesn't go with her mouth, and her chin doesn't fit her forehead, and her eyes don't match any of those things, according to my diagram of symmetry—but, lo, you!—she is exquisite, and I tag after her and do not mind the angle of her nose.

"This was her. A round-bodied, tall, little girl, trim and nifty and laced up smooth—graceful and quick on her feet. Her hands are smooth and plump. Her hair is black—the warm black with mahogany lights—her brows and eyes are the same warm, mellow black—her lashes thick and curled up.

"Her nose is the funny one. A crooked, turn-up little nose, sassy and senseless. The white of her eyes is blue, it is so white!

"Her skin is warm and white and hard, with a deep color gathered into scarlet in her cheeks and matched in her lips. And she has a dimple—in one cheek—a deep-dented dimple, where the gods, seeing her and smiling at her kindness and sassiness and sweetness, chipped a little bit for themselves out of the apple of her cheek.

"I don't know—I only saw her trotting along on her black feet—dripping and laughing, with her black hair like wet silk. I don't know—but I bet she is a chatterbox—gererous—sweet tempered—a bit witty—kind as the south wind—as gay as the green waves on the sand that she came slushing out of—and just—my dear lady—a little devilish bit of a coquette! It hides behind the droop of her left eyelid—and I liked it."

Paris handled his apple and sighed.

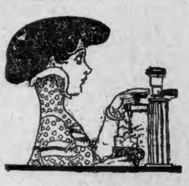
RHYMES ABOUT THE TOWN

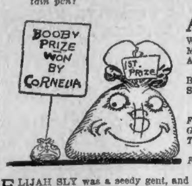
BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

CORNELIA CREAM



CORNELIA CREAM dispensed cold drinks in a popular soda store,
Returning scowls for the wistful winks that her masculine patrons wore;
For Cornelia's dream, as she twirled her spoon, led far from the fizzing fount
To a private yacht and a honeymoon with a corpulent bank account.
So she eagerly scanned each customer, o'er the top of the cracked-ice bowl,
For the kind of a man that appealed to her as the Captain of her Soul.

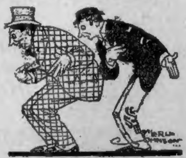
But how can a trusting maiden tell if her sky will be always blue?
And how can she tell if a lover's heart will beat forever true?
And how, which is more important still, can she tell what his cognomen
Will mean on the southeast end of a check, when applied with his fountain pen?



BOOBY PRIZE WON BY CORNELIA
1ST. PRIZE

ARUNDEL BRAGG was a large young man, of a glad and expensive type,
Whose taste in raiment mostly ran to the jocund check and stripe.
More vivid than his shirt-stud's gleam was his coruscating nerve.
And he sued for the hand of Cornelia Cream with a galloping vim and verve.
But the lady feared that his rich array was simply a guileful snare,
So she said: "What, wed! Not me! Nay, nay!" which bathed him in dumb despair.

For how can a simple soda girl like the fair Cornelia Cream
Get by the fact that most young men are rarely what they seem?
The clothes may make the man, 'tis true, but the platitude ends right there.
For observing life, you will seldom find that they make the millionaire.



ELIJAH SLY was a seedy gent, and the overcoat he wore
Would not have been worth a single cent outside of an antique store.
His head was clad in a battered hat, and Cornelia told herself
That he never would dare to dress like that unless he had piles of pelf.
And so one day, when he held her hand with a soft and smooth caress,
And asked if she thought she could understand, she timidly answered "Yes!"

For how could the worldless damsel know, when she and Elijah wed,
That the state of brokeness that he was in is vulgarly known as "dead?"
And how could she know that Arundel Bragg had cut his sartorial dash
On the strength of a stack of the crisp long green that footed ten millions, cash?

THE JOURNAL OF A NEGLECTED WIFE

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

CHAPTER X.

—— Hotel, Brooklyn, Nov. 29.

A CHEERLESS hotel room, a bed, a table, a stationary washstand, three chairs, a telephone on the wall and a card of hotel laws and regulations on the back of the door.

My silver brushes on the bureau, and my suit-case on a chair—how strangely unfamiliar they look!

For two days they have been there—and yet——. I cannot put it into words—I only know that often in these two days I have spread a towel over the bureau and have hid the suit-case in the wardrobe.

And then there is nothing in sight that recalls. Nothing except the telephone. That is just the same—even the same green book hangs beneath it. By taking down that receiver and whispering a number—at any moment—I could. But no! no! I shall go mad if I think of that. For two days I have been fighting that thought.

Why did I bring with me this journal?

If I must write—if the only relief I know is putting my suffering into words—would it not have been better to have begun anew?

Why did I put in my suit-case this record of the life I was leaving?

The very cover of the book, even the feel of the soft leather, brings back my desk before me—the gilt ink-stand, the blotting pad, the silver paper knife, the tiny revolving calendar, the address book—are they still lying carelessly as I left them, or have they been locked away?

Will I ever see it again? Will I ever take it from its case and wind it, as I have so many hundred times? I am praying that I will—that I will! Only two days and—oh, God! how I want to go back!

November 30.

THAT night—the events that at last drove me from my home!

For two days and nights I have walked up and down this room, living it over and over, always with the anguished questioning—could I have stayed? Was there any way I could have kept any vestige of my self-respect and still have stayed?

Why did I go to the door—why did I listen? Never before have I stooped to so contemptible a thing. Why did I do it then?

We were at dinner when the telephone rang. Horace dropped his napkin and hurried up to the library.

There was something so tense, so anxious in his manner, and he had been so silent and pre-occupied all through the dinner.

Was he expecting this message? Was it from her?

I rose from the table and went half way up the stairs until I could see the library door. It was closed.

There was something in the sight of that closed door that sent the fierce hot blood surging through me.

Was he talking to this woman in our house—closing the door on me and talking to her? Deliberately I walked to the door and listened. I would know—I had a right to know.

"Temperature 102? Is the doctor there now? Why did you not send for me before? Yes, at once. Tell her I am coming at once."

I made no attempt to slip away. I was leaning against the door when he opened it. For a second he stood motionless, then:

"You have listened?"

"Yes."

"I am sorry you did that," he said quietly, as he passed me on his way upstairs.

I caught his arm. "If I have listened, it is you who have driven me to it."

He made no answer; he merely released his arm and went on upstairs. In a few minutes he came down with his hat and coat. I was still waiting where he had left me in the hall. Again I caught his arm.

"You are not going to that woman to-night!"

"Mary, I am sorry you are doing this; it is only humiliating to us both."

Even in this dim light of to hall I could see he was very pale.

"You are not going to that woman to-night!"

He passed on down the hall to the front door. I ran ahead of him and stood before the door, my hand on the lock.

"Horace, if you go to that woman to-night I shall not be here when you come back!"

"You must do as you think best." He put me gently aside, opened the door and closed it after him.

December 1st.

IF I could know just what I wrote—if I could remember the exact words! But I was almost crazed that night. I only know that I left a note—a bitter, passionate note—saying that I was going away and would never come back until he promised unconditionally that he would never see that woman again.

I did not wish him to know or try to find out where I was, but that any letters addressed to Mrs. R. L. Kempton, General Delivery, I would receive. But not to write unless it was to make the promise I demanded. I think that was all I said, but I do not know how I said it.

Oh, why did I say he must not write unless he made that promise? If I had not said that he might have written something—anything—that would have made it possible for me to go back. I know now I would go back under any pretext.

Those five days have beaten me down—down.

If he would only write and make the promise—even though he broke it the next day. If I can only go back, I will be blind—blind! I will make no complaints, no reproaches. I will ask so little—so much less than I have ever asked before. I will accept any conditions if only I can be with him.

December 2d.

FOR the sixth time in these four years I have gone over to New York to the city postoffice, to the window marked "General Delivery," and have asked if there is anything for Mrs. R. L. Kempton, and always the man answers "Nothing!"

And so wI am back in Brooklyn, in my hotel room, waiting, waiting for what? For the morning, when I will again go over to that postoffice and again be told "Nothing!"

What have I done? If he should never answer that letter—if he should never try to find me!

For the first two days my fierce pride and bitterness kept me up. But now—now I am terrified at what I have done.

I could have stayed—I could have seen him every day—every morning I could have been with him at breakfast, and many times at dinner.

I could have had all his things about me, his room to straighten, his clothes to touch—to bury my face against! But now I have nothing—nothing.

How long can I live like this?

(To be continued to-morrow).

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

THARE was trubbel up to our house last nite about a piano, the piano was in the flat right oaver our flat, & the lady was all the time playing. Wen Pa caim hoam he had a hed ake, & his eyes looked heavy.

Poor deer, sed Ma. Poor, darling boy. How hard you do work, Ma sed, & how few thoughts I give to yure silent hours of faithful endevver down in that horrid offis. I called you up to-day, wen I was feeling sorry for you, & thay sed you had jest went out, but that you wud be rite back.

My poor darling, sed Ma, you must taik a long vacashun sum of these days. It must be a terribul strain on you, this con-stant thought.

Pa looked at Ma kind of funny. Pa isent used to hearing Ma talk that way & he kep looking at her.

Do you meen it sed Pa, fin-aily.

Of course I meen it, sed Ma. Deer knight wich calm & took me off to this enchanted palace, yure welfare is evver first in my thoughts.

Bless yure deer tired eyes, sed Ma. I wish that terribul piano up starces wud stop pounding away, & give you a chanst to rest. I knew wen that yung hussy moved in that we wud have no peace or rest.

Is she a yung hussy? asked Pa. She is, sed Ma. Vary yung? Pa asked. Well, sed Ma, she is passed the broiler age, but she stil reetains traces of her girlish buty. Why do you ask? Ma sed.

Nevver mind, sed Pa. I am going up stares to interrogait her about why she leeves herself play the piany at al hours of the nite. I wuddent cair so much, sed Pa, if she played the old classick peeces, like Liszt's Rap-sodas or Ime afrade to go hoam in the Twilight, but if she is disturbing my loving wife I want to know it.

The worst thing that she plays, sed Ma, wich gits on my nerves, is I love you as I Nevver Loved Beefoar. I ain't vary keen for that kind of rapsody, sed Ma, & I wish she wud cut it out.

Did she sing that awful ballad? sed Pa. That old chestnut? Wait til I go up stares & ree-buke her about it.

In the first plais, Pa sed, it is not a good lyrick. That stuff about Since first I met you on the village green is a rank app-eel to the mushy side of the hart & brane, Pa sed, & that line Cum to me luv, or Luv's sweet dreem is oer, Pa sed, is all to the bush league.

Then Pa went up stares & wen he was gone Ma kep on talking to me about the yung lady wich was up stares & how foolish she was.

I bet yure father will call her down good & hard, sed Ma, good & Plenty. That is one (1) thing about yure father, sed Ma, wich I have to respeck. He certainly will not stand for anybody wich harms my peese of mind.

You see, Bobbie, sed Ma, I offen have to ree-buke yure father wen he is a littel bit wild, but he has a kind & honest hart wich beets under neeth his vest, & he is always trying to do the best he can for you & me.

He is a awful rounder, I will admit, sed Ma, & he offen throws his sense of Duty to the winds, & he wares the saim collar two (2) days wen he cud git a new one (1) for the price of a singel li-bashun, but otherwise he is all rite, Ma sed, & you & me ought to luv him vary much.

He will be back down stairs in a minnit, Ma sed, after having called that piano playing lady down, & then we will both tell him how good he is to us.

Who is that singing? sed Ma, all of a sudding.

It was Pa's voice. This is wat he was singing:

I luv you as I nevver luved bee-foar,
Since first I met you on the village green.
Cum to me onst aggen or all is oer.
I luv you as I luved you wen we was sweet six-teen (16).

Then Ma rapped hard on the steem pipe & Pa calm rite down stares. Ma is going up to see the yung lady piano player herself, tomorrow morning.

Banzai!

IT is not infrequent to find men speculating as to the origin of the now familiar "banzai," and we believe that a general impression classes this excellent ejaculation among the inventions of modern Japan.

Quite recently, indeed, we heard a learned Japanese declare that the late Professor Toyama was the originator of the word as the Japanese equivalent to "hurrah."

But the truth is that "banzai" belongs to a very much remoter date. History shows that it was used certainly as long ago as the year 486 A. D., and probably it was not an innovation even then.

In the "Chronicles of Japan"—a work published in the year 820 A. D.—it is related that, in the Spring of 486 A. D., the Emperor Woke, remembered by posterity as "Kenza, Tenno," repaired to the park of the Summer hall, and there held revel by "the winding streams." His guests were a concourse of ministers and of high officials known at that epoch under the titles of Omi, Muraji and Miyakko.

When the feast was at its height the guests, we read, "raised repeated cries of Banzai!"

It may fairly be assumed that this formula of gratulation did not originate then, but at any rate its undoubted use in Japan more than fourteen centuries ago deprives any Meiji savant of the credit of having invented it.—Japan Mail.

Smiles

"VERY few of us realize the terrible things that may result from a word hastily spoken," said the benevolent woman.

"Well, I realize it," answered the young man who sat by her on the train. "I'm a baseball umpire.

* * *

"COME over and see me."

"Sorry, old man, but I have an en[illegible]ment with my tailor in twenty minutes."

"Gee! but you're getting swell! Couldn't break such an important date, eh?"

"No; the date is in the court room."

* * *

HER—You never dream of getting married, I suppose?

Him—Oh, yes, after I've eaten Welsh rabbit.

* * *

"IT'S so sweet of him to have miniatures and portraits of his wife instead of mere photographs."

"Yes, indeed. The camera is so exact, you know."

* * *

"WHY do artists always sign their pictures.

"It's an agreement they have, so that nobody will be able to blame one on some one else."

A FEW PEOPLE DON'T USE AMERICAN WANT ADS

For the same reason that modern methods were once scoffed at by our forefathers, yet, in spite of prejudice, progress has its way. The successful majority employ the "WANT AD WAY" to secure tenants, or buyers, or help, or employment. They employ the AMERICAN, realizing that it is the only paper which will carry their message to nearly all of the people.

"Help! Anarchy! Murder!" Cried the Tory Millionaires

They Are Actually Spending as Much to Keep Old People Alive as They Used to Spend to Murder Young People in War

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

Have you read about the English budget? There is excitement in England; please believe that. The English gentleman with the red face and the big bank account has a redder face than ever. He is very near the bursting point. Every man with a big fortune that he didn't earn and a big income that he squanders comfortably is full of rage, riot and denunciation

They had to raise some extra money in England this year—about eighty million dollars, the government being short of funds—and what do you suppose they did? THEY ACTUALLY DECIDED TO TAKE THIS MONEY FROM RICH PEOPLE INSTEAD OF TAKING IT FROM THE POOR. And the echo of the horror has flown across the ocean and reached our own Tory newspapers.

There is a dreadful state of affairs over there, and the rich man is vowing that he will leave the country. Capital says, "I want to go away; I don't want to stay here."

But when English capital crosses the Continent to get away from English radicalism, it meets French capital coming over from France to get away from French radicalism, and the story that French capital tells is such a bloodcurdling story that the poor old English gentleman, with his capital, decides to go back to London.

In England, at last, a government popular and radical, AND SANE AND DECENT, has determined to make those pay that can AFFORD to pay.

And it is with the very greatest pleasure that we give you a few statements of facts, facts that have exploded in the Tory heart, nearly tearing that grand old institution to pieces.

For instance, they are going to put a tax on motor cars, graduated according to horsepower. That is bad enough, to tax the harmless little pleasure of the gentleman with the big automobile. But, they are NOT going to put that tax on the taxicab with which a man earns his living. What do you think of that for anarchy?

If you have a large red car and enjoy yourself running over people, on your days of leisure, you have to pay a tax to the government for having that amount of fun. But if you are trying to earn a living running a cab around the streets and doing your best to keep your family alive, YOU PAY NO TAX AT ALL. Doctors, supposed to be useful, pay only half the tax. They pay half because these anarchistic English lawmakers feel that as a doctor is a little more prosperous than the man who runs a cab, he ought to pay a little more.

And they are going to tax the gasoline used in automobiles, six cents a gallon. But men who use this gasoline in the effort to earn a living, will only pay one-half of the tax. They will get a rebate, and those that burn up the gasoline simply for fun will pay the full tax. The total amount of this tax will be spent making roads good. In other words, those that burn up the gasoline, and also tear up the roads, will pay a tax to make the roads good again.

The former custom in England was to make the poor penniless devils that lived along the roads repair the roads for nothing and at their own expense. And the rich gentleman rode over the roads and tore them up and paid nothing. Things change in these "socialistic" days.

And then the INCOME TAX. You know they have THAT in England. They feel that if a man has a comfortable income every year, and the government protects him, he ought to be willing to pay something to the government just as he would pay the fire insurance company that protects his property. They not only tax incomes in England, but, if you actually earn your income, and therefore do something in the country, THEY LOWER YOUR TAX. And all "unearned incomes," incomes that a man gets without doing anything, PAY AN EXTRA TAX. There is anarchy for you. They actually make a man pay more simply because he happens to be a parasite and a drone and doesn't do a stroke of work in return for the money he gets. Whereas, when a man works, uses his brain, develops industry or trade, and makes an income that way, THEY CHARGE HIM LESS. So, again we ask, what is England coming to?

And, if you have a good deal of income, they make you pay a heavier percentage in taxes than if you have less. The very rich man pays a bigger percentage than the little man.

And there is far worse to tell you. They actually take CHILDREN into consideration. If a man hasn't got more than five hundred pounds per year, they take off ten pounds for every child under sixteen years of age. In other words, this anarchistic budget plainly says that the man who is raising children renders a public service, deserves the thanks of the state, and shall not be taxed as much as the man who has no children.

They tax big inherited fortunes over there—they expect to get from death duties alone more than thirty-five million dollars a year. And they tax heartily and generously stock exchange transactions—more anarchy for you.

In these and other anarchistic ways the radicals in England have planned an increase in the budget of about one hundred and twenty-five million dollars per year. And that isn't all of it, the worst and most horrible part is still to be told.

The government is actually outlining an increase of the old age pension scheme. They are going to take some of this money from very rich, vigorous men, and give it to thousands of the worn-out, worked-out old men and women that have been honest all their lives and now see poverty and the poorhouse staring them in the face.

As one indignant Tory in America has put it, they are putting upon the people, to pension the old and help the children, such taxes as they used to lay before only in time of war. They are actually planning to spend as much money to HELP human beings as they used to spend to MURDER them.

We do things differently in America, don't we? No income tax here.

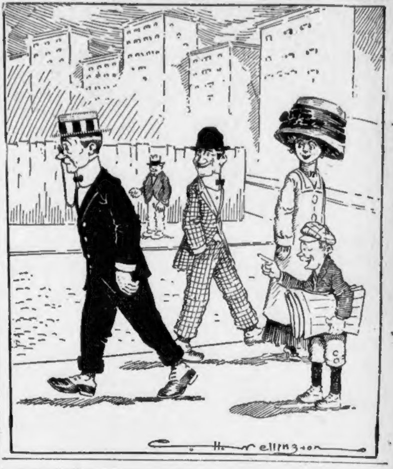
THERE'S A REASON



That New Lodge-Crane Charter Is a Huge Joke on the People

If the voters of Boston meekly swallow the charter revision dose that the Republican party bosses are compounding on Beacon Hill they will and should be politically sick for a long time.

If the new charter bill proposed by the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs of the General Court is enacted into law its immediate effect will be completely to PARALYZE THE ENTIRE BODY POLITIC of the city and render the VOTERS HELPLESS in the hands of political quacks and sharpers.

What will Mr. Ordinary Voter have to say about a candidate for Mayor under a convention system of nominating?

If he wants to be a delegate he will have to work or buy himself into the good graces of the little ward bosses, or go out and organize an opposition. To make even a respectable showing in opposition to the little machines would cost a great deal of time, energy and money.

And Mr. Ordinary Voter is not prone to expend his time or substance bucking a political machine that has a well-developed system and abundant financial resources. He knows the futility of it as a general rule.

What matters it to the bosses if the opposition wins a delegate here and another there, or, indeed, carries several ward delegations?

The Party Bosses Will Always Win

The machine will have the preliminary convention organization in its hands EVERY TIME, and, with that advantage, backed up by a well drilled corps of expert convention workers and a few trained applause promoters, the party bosses will rush their slate through a convention nine times out of ten, EVEN WITH A MAJORITY OF DELEGATES OPPOSED, but unskilfully opposing.

Eminent gentlemen are telling voters nightly that a return to the convention plan would be a "fine thing." Of course it would—for the eminent gentlemen and their friends, THE PARTY MACHINE BOSSES.

It would "do away with many of the disagreeable features of municipal politics," say the eminent gentlemen. Certainly. In fact, the common PEOPLE WOULD NOT HAVE TO BOTHER about candidates at all. Benevolent dealers in political bargains would provide all the features.

"The convention system would simplify matters," declares one apologist for the proposed new charter bill. Decidedly. All the registered poll tax payer would have to do would be to vote for machine-made candidates.

Independents Would Have No Chance

Of, course, if Mr. Voter does not appreciate these advantages of the convention system, he may vote for another—the petition plan—one that will allow him to have his name or that of a friend placed on the ballot. He will only be required to secure the signatures of 5,000 voters on nomination papers certified for each nomination he desires to make. But that is such a simple matter, getting 5,000 names!

The beautiful offering that goes with acceptance of the petition plan is the abolition of party designations. PARTY MACHINES WOULD REMAIN, just the same. They would be on hand with their district workers and a fine line of names. They would have a monopoly of the means of creating petition candidates and no independent group would be able to make successful campaign against them. The cost would be too great.

This proposed abolition of parties in our municipal affairs is a pretty theory—but A PRACTICAL JOKE.

And the two little crumbs of charter revision that Lodge and Crane have told their puppets in the Legislature to submit to popular vote are called a referendum! What a MOCKERY! What INSOLENCE!

But, as we said in the beginning, if those that want good government—the business associations, the improvement associations, the labor organizations and the others—stand for the nauseating charter dose prescribed by Old Doctor Lodge and Old Doctor Crane, IT WILL BE GOOD ENOUGH FOR THEM IF THEY SUFFER from repeated attacks of political stomach aches.

Ability vs. Genius

By Paul Thieman

The world has very little, if any, mercy for the man that fails.

Therefore the attempt of General Kuropatkin to square himself with history in a book seems pitiful, until the book is examined.

And, upon examination, it is evident that Kuropatkin was the highest type of the mere man.

His fault was that he was not a genius!

But his cold statement of cold facts show that the usual verdict of history is wrong in blaming mere good and valiant men for not being geniuses. In truth and verity, this Russian General played a strong man's part.

In the war with Japan Kuropatkin fully realized the conditions. He was an able commander, but he was given only four and one-half months of absolute authority in the field.

His forces were crude. The troops of the line were retained in European Russia to keep down rebellion, and he got in the main only reservists.

But Kuropatkin's theory was that by fighting, always fighting, the overwhelming force of the Russian empire finally would triumph.

And Japan, at the end of its resources, succeeded in gaining the interposition of Theodore Roosevelt. For the time being Roosevelt enjoyed the applause of the world for the Peace of Portsmouth.

The whole thing was a succession of evil conditions beyond Kuropatkin's control, with a final blunder on the part of the chief of the United States menacing the peace of the world.

The Peace of Portsmouth was pregnant with war!

Returning to this man Kuropatkin, as I said, he was a valiant person, and an able commander, his back loaded with enormous difficulties.

And that is the line of difference between mere great ability and genius.

Let us fancy, for example, that Grant had been dismissed in the Wilderness. Grant had only commenced fighting his history-making campaign.

Just before the capture of Fort Henry and Fort Donelson an attempt was made to remove Grant.

Grant refused to obey the order to relinquish command and went on and won his victory, and quickly, the North ringing with it, he could not be removed.

It has been said that Grant was a commonplace man, who was only the opportunist of his opportunities.

I think that Grant was a genius.

The story of Kuropatkin confirms that belief.

Kuropatkin was ordered to quit, and he quit.

Grant was ordered to quit, and he would not quit.
